Stalin Says North African Campaign Dooms Hitler

Russian Premier Predicts Certain Collapse of Axis

Praises American and British Leaders as Organizers

Says Drive Will Soon Relieve Pressure on Russia

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Copyrighted, 1942, by the Associated Press)

MOSCOW, Saturday, Nov. 14.—Joseph Stalin asserted today that the American and British campaign in Africa had turned the military and political position in Europe radically in favor of the Allies, opening the way for the early collapse of the German and Italian Axis.

The Soviet leader praised American and British leaders as "first-rate organizers" of the African campaign and expressed confidence that it soon would relieve German pressure on the eastern front.

He pledged that the Russian army would carry out its part of the war task with honor.

The statements were made in the second exclusive autographed letter by the Russian leader to this correspondent.

Stalin's First Letter

Stalin in the first letter to me on Oct. 3 said a second front was of paramount importance and declared that Allied aid to Russia had been of little effect compared to the Soviet contribution to prosecution of the war and called on the Allies to fulfill their obligations fully and promptly.

I sent a letter to the Kremlin Thursday evening asking the Soviet view of the new situation since the American landings in French North Africa and the British victory in Egypt.

Stalin's reply reflecting the Soviet appreciation of the campaign was handed to me Friday at midnight by Nikolai Paganov, chief of the press department of the foreign commissariat.

The text of Stalin's letter in its authorized English translation follows:

"Dear Mr. Cassidy:

"I am answering your questions which reached me on November 12th.

"One. What is the Soviet view of the Allied campaign in Africa?"

"Answer. The Soviet view of this campaign is that it represents an outstanding fact of major importance demonstrating the growing might of the armed forces of the Allies and opening the prospect of the dis-

Pointing to a landing spot on a map is Lieut. Col. Edson D. Raff, commanding officer of the United States paratroops who took part in the assault on Oran in North Africa. This contingent of soldiers made the longest flight ever undertaken by airborne troops in an attack operation. Americans Deal Japs Hard Blow At Guadalcanal

But 30 U. S. Sailors Meet Death aboard Heavy Cruiser

By WILLIAM F. FRYE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—Lashing out at the Japanese on Guadalcanal in the Solomons, a powerful United States sea-air force has annihilated thirty enemy planes, destroyed thirty large landing boats, slanted a number of shore batteries and started large fires on the island, a navy communique revealed today.

The United States heavy cruiser San Francisco, which took part in the attack, was slightly damaged and thirty of her men killed when a flaming Japanese plane plummeted on to her deck, the communique added, while the U. S. destroyer Buchanan was damaged by a shell from an enemy shore battery which killed five of her crew.

The two ships, with an unspecified number of others, were engaged at the time in lending the aid of their guns to the westward drive of the army and marine corps troops on Guadalcanal.

Sea Force Opens Attack

Proceeding in the dark of night to a point westward of the American land positions, the potent sea force opened a terrific bombardment at the crack of dawn Thursday (late Wednesday afternoon here) and kept it up for hours.

They were still pouring shells at the Japanese at 2:15 p. m., when the bombardment was interrupted by a Japanese air attack. Fighter-escorted Japanese torpedo bombers launched an assault on the ships, but twenty-eight intercepting navy Grumman Wildcats shot down sixteen bombers and five of the Japanese zero fighters, while the ships' anti-aircraft gunners brought down nine more of the attacking planes. Only one of the entire formation of thirty-one Japanese aircraft escaped.

Plane Crashes on Deck

It was during this fight that one of the enemy planes, disabled and burning, crashed on the busy deck of the San Francisco. The Buchanan was hit by a five-inch shell from a Japanese shore battery during the long bombardment.

Roosevelt Signs New Draft Bill; Early Call Looms

President Says "Time Has Come and All Are Ready To Serve"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt tonight signed the "teen-age draft bill," and in a statement said he had ordered a study with a view to enabling the 18- and 19-year olds called to service to resume their schooling and training after the war.

The president also promised to announce in the near future a plan to utilize during the war the facilities of certain colleges and universities for the training of a limited number of men for "highly specialized duties" in the armed forces.

"These men," the president said, "will be selected solely on the basis of their ability and without regard to whether or not they are now in college or whether they could otherwise afford to go to college."

In signing the bill, final action on which was taken only yesterday by the Senate, the president said:

Time to Call Youth

"The time has now come when the successful prosecution of the war requires that we call to the colors the men of 18 and 19. Many have already volunteered. Others have been eagerly awaiting the call. All are ready and anxious to serve.

"The civilian careers of these men will be interrupted, as have the careers of most of their seniors." Large numbers about to enter the armed services will come from schools and colleges. The vocational and technical training which the armed services now offer to many will stand them in good stead.

Consults Educators

"I am causing a study to be made by a committee of educators, under the auspices of the war and navy departments, for the taking of steps to enable the young men whose education has been interrupted to resume their schooling and afford equal opportunity for the training and education of other young men of ability after their service in the armed services has come to an end."

"Some useful action along this line was improvised at the end of the last war," the president said. "This time we are planning in advance."

Will Train Specialists

"Finally, we are announcing in the near future a plan providing for the utilization during the war of the facilities of certain colleges and universities for the training of a limited number of men of the armed forces for highly specialized duties. These men will be selected solely on the basis of their ability and without regard to whether or not they are now in college or whether they could otherwise afford to go to college."

The drafting of the new age group, it was estimated, might supply more than 2,000,000 or the 4-500,000 additional men needed in all the armed forces by January 1, 1944.

Inductions from the 18-19 year old group were expected to begin within thirty or forty days. This, however, will vary to some extent, depending upon preparations made by local boards to meet draft calls with older men and also on how rapidly the boards can classify the new group for service.

Russians Beat Off German Attacks In Limited Section of Stalingrad

By EDDY GILMORE

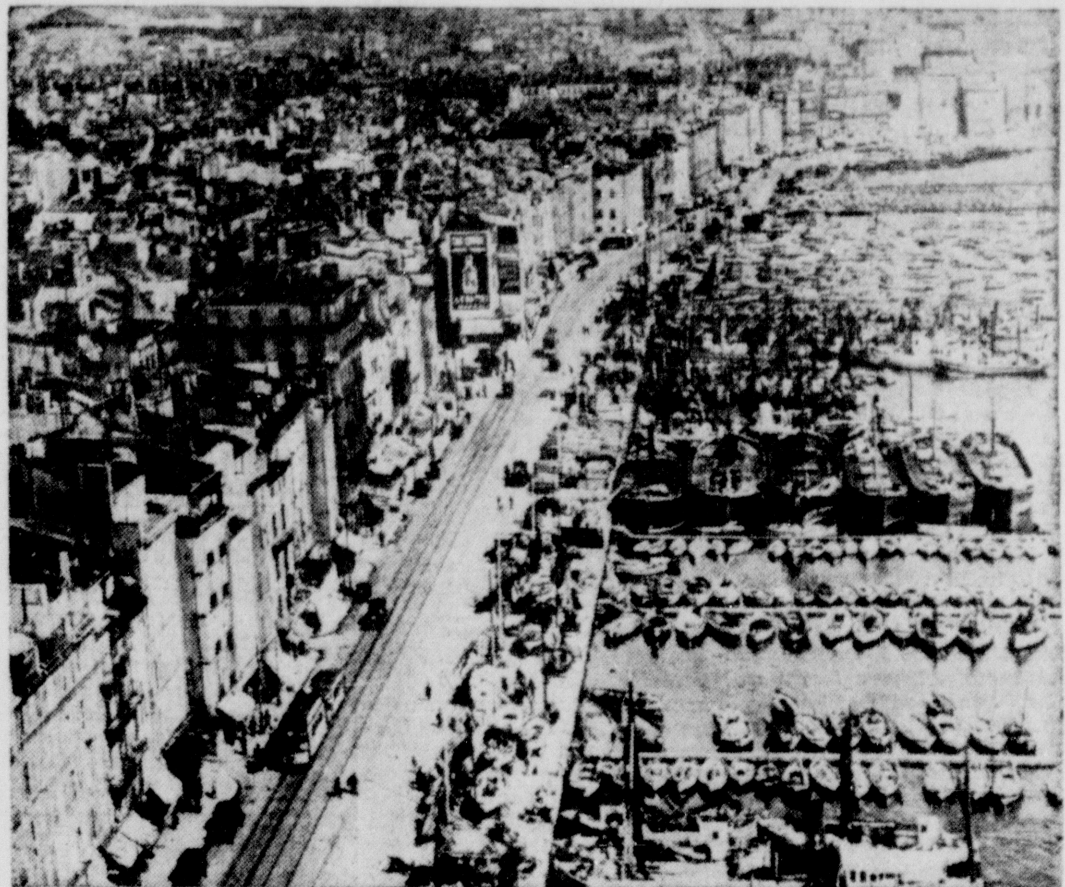

MOSCOW, Saturday, Nov. 13 (AP)—Russian defenders of Stalingrad beat off new German drives which in limited sectors developed into fighting of great intensity yesterday, the Russians announced today.

In the regions of Nalchik and Taupse the Germans attempted thrusts into the deep Russian defenses, but were repulsed with heavy losses, the midnight communique said.

While the fighting was intense in localized regions Russian reports emphasized that the German drives were on a greatly reduced scale. The communique spoke of engagements involving hundreds, in comparison to the tens of thousands participating in the combat in recent weeks.

Cold was becoming more intense. Behind the consolidated Russian positions the Volga was clogged with ice.

MARSEILLES, GREAT FRENCH PORT, TAKEN BY NAZIS

This is an aerial view of Marseilles, France, showing the waterfront and part of the great city. According to a Swiss radio report, the Germans have blown up the entire coastal railroad simultaneously with their occupation of this strategic Mediterranean port. Marseilles lies forty-two miles northwest of the Toulon naval base toward which the Nazis appeared to be driving hastily. The population of the invaded city was understood to have been ordered to remain indoors.

Charges by Maas Bring Demands For an Inquiry

Congressman's Statement on War Effort Criticized by Rep. Vincent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—Criticism by Rep. Maas (R-Minn.) that the armed services lacked unity of command and that they minimized "defeats and disasters" to the public evoked demands today for congressional investigation.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) and Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, House Republican leader, said that the situation Maas described called for action by Congress and that it should hasten the establishment of the proposed bi-partisan Senate-House committee to investigate these and other complaints on the conduct of the war.

Rep. Vincent (D-Ky.) wrote Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House naval committee that Maas had "rendered aid and comfort to the enemy" and urged that the Naval committee, of which Vincent and Maas are members, investigate "these serious charges."

Rep. Bates (R-Ky.), when asked his opinion of Maas's charges, commented:

Would Silence Maas

"If what Maas says is true, it ought to be looked into. If it's not true, he ought to be made to shut up. Frankly, I think he ought to be made to shut up anyway. That sort of talk is not going to help the feeling around the country any."

Vincent said that if charges similar to those made last night by Maas in a radio speech had been made by a German or Japanese officer, "the person making such (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

4,000 TON FREIGHTER FLOATED IN 80 HOURS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13 (AP)—A 4,000-ton freighter floated in San Francisco bay today eighty hours after her keel was laid, smashing all records for speedy ship construction.

She was the Samuel Very, floated in the graving dock of the Pacific Bridge Company at Alameda.

"We can do it again any time all the materials are available," commented E. J. Welton, general manager of the shipbuilding division of the company. "It's all a question of the availability of supplies and labor."

The previous record was set yesterday by Henry J. Kaiser's Richmond, No. 2 yard, further up San Francisco bay. The Kaiser yard launched the 10,500-ton Robert E. Peary 11½ hours after laying the keel. This more than cut in half the then seemingly impossible ten-day record of Kaiser's Portland (Ore.) yard for the same type craft.

The Robert E. Peary was ninety-one percent complete when launched and was expected to be delivered, ready to go to sea, Monday. The Samuel Very was seventy percent complete, slightly more than standard completion at launching time. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

State May Exempt Federal Employees From Income Tax

Committee Studying Proposal of Representative of O'Connor

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 13 (AP)—Maryland's tax revision commission is studying a proposal, submitted by the office of emergency management's liaison officer, which would exempt certain federal employees who work in Maryland from state income tax liability.

Executive Secretary A. J. Bourbon, of Governor O'Connor's office, reported today that Wayne Coy, of OEM, had submitted the proposal to the chief executive in September and that the governor sent it to the tax revision commission for consideration.

Bourbon said, that although it was reported at Washington today that O'Connor had approved the proposal and would recommend it to the legislature as an income tax amendment in January, he knew only that the governor had handled the matter in a "routine" way.

Coy objected to the state taxing federal employees who lived in Virginia or the District of Columbia but who worked in Maryland because of a location of various government agencies.

"These employees have nothing to do with the state," Coy wrote, "and had nothing to do with the location of their offices. Besides (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Allies Crossing Border in Drive To Trap Rommel

Colonials Attack after Appeals from Admiral Darlan

"Good Hunting to You All" Is Message from Montgomery

LONDON, Saturday, Nov. 14 (AP)—French Tunisian garrisons were reported fighting German tanks and paratroops in Tunisia early today as dispatches said Allied troops had swept across that protectorate's western frontier amid appeals by Vice-Admiral Jean Darlan for all Frenchmen to lay down their arms and join the Allies.

Far to the east in Libya the British Eighth army rolled on after occupying Tobruk without opposition, and Marshal Rommel's fleeing remnants were being pounded by Allied airmen already operating from captured Libyan air fields.

Fighting in Tunis

A dispatch from Allied headquarters in North Africa told of the French Tunisian uprisings against the Germans who were said to be trying desperately to control the capital of Tunis. Nazi parachute troops were said to be in control of an airport outside the capital.

This information conflicted slightly with an earlier RAP report that said six Italian planes carrying Nazi troops north across the Mediterranean had been shot down. The RAF had deduced that the Germans were leaving their infiltrated Tunisian positions, but it was also probable that the destroyed planes were flying from Tripoli or some other point in Libya rather than from Tunisia.

British Cross Frontier

A Reuters dispatch from Tangier said that British troops had crossed the Algerian-Tunisian frontier in the speedy effort to close all North Africa to the Axis.

Allied headquarters opinion was said to be reserved on the prospect of the Tunisian Frenchmen responding to Admiral Darlan's appeal, but it was apparent that French hatred had precipitated the battle with the Germans and this was viewed here as favorable to the Allied position.

Algeria and Morocco already have swung mostly into the Allied fold, and French dock workers are aiding the Allied advance. United States and British airmen also were said to be taking a heavy toll of Axis airmen trying to stem the surge toward Tunisia.

Montgomery Pleased

Gen. B. L. Montgomery, commander of the army chasing Marshal Rommel, said the enemy had been "completely smashed" losing at least 30,000 prisoners and vast (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Big Naval Battle Reported by Vichy

LONDON, Saturday, Nov. 14 (AP)—Reuters said today that the Vichy radio had broadcast a report that a big naval battle is in progress off Algiers.

The announcer quoted a dispatch from La Linea, Spain, on the Gibraltar border, as saying that confirmation of the report of the battle was seen in the departure of British naval and air units from Gibraltar during yesterday.

(This dispatch gave no further details and did not say where the Vichy report of the battle originated.)

CIO Offers Unity to AFL on Basis Of Equality; Re-Elects Officers

By JOE LOFTUS

BOSTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—The CIO offered unity on the basis of equality to the AFL today and presented a united front in the unanimous re-election of all officers and three additional vice presidents.

Philip Murray was chosen with a noisy, prolonged acclamation for a third term after a nominating speech by Sidney Hillman, of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, at the final session of the fifth annual convention.

Hillman and Murray earlier presented somewhat divergent views on the prospects of achieving organic labor unity, though there was no (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4) disagreement on the desirability of achieving a just peace with the parent movement.

Hillman flatly said he challenged anyone who said unity was not possible.

Murray Aims Views

Murray, following him, died the "realities" of negotiations and declared that if the AFL did not lay aside its "age-old habits" and recognize CIO equality, "then no success can attend a peace conference." Conferences are scheduled to start in a week or two.

The new vice-presidents are: Albert J. Fitzgerald, United Elec-

Republicans Gain Seat in Congress

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 13 (AP)—Republicans gained another seat in Congress today with the election of Chester H. Gross over Harry L. Haines, Democratic incumbent, by seventy-one votes in Pennsylvania's Twenty-second congressional district.

Settlement of the close contest was delayed until the counting of 146 soldier ballots today. The final count in the Adams-Franklin-York county district gave Gross 34,202. Haines 34,131. Gross polled eighty-three soldier votes to sixty-three for Haines.

Republicans now hold nineteen of Pennsylvania's thirty-three seats in the new Congress.

Hundreds of Japanese Killed, Two Cruisers Blasted by Allied Forces

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS AUSTRALIA, Saturday, Nov. 14 (AP)—Heavy bombers blasted two light Japanese cruisers and set fire to a transport in the same Buin-Faisi area of the North Solomons where only yesterday four troop-laden transports were bombed, the Allied high command reported today.

Dropping down to within 1,000 feet, in the face of heavy anti-aircraft fire, the bombers also scored a near miss on a destroyer, left the 8,000-ton transport ablaze and crashed a runway of the Kahili air-base, then got away safely.

The same communique told of continued success of the Allied ground troops fighting their way toward the northeast New Guinea coast. In the Gorari area, where a Jap force was surrounded and annihilated earlier in the week, the bodies of five officers and more than 500 men have been counted in the jungle. At Oivi, where another Jap force was pocketed, several hundred additional dead have been found.

Meanwhile, the advancing Allies have moved into the vicinity of Ililow which is between Gorari and the northeast coastal base of Buna, less than fifty miles away.

An enemy force has been surrounded near Ililow.

Hope Is Renewed For Rickenbacker; Search Continues

Companion of Missing Ace Found Alive on a Life Raft

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—Surface ships and long-range planes combed a wide South Pacific area today with renewed hope that they might find Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, famous World War flier, missing since he reported rapidly dwindling fuel supplies on October 21.

One of his comrades, Captain William T. Cherry, Jr., of Abilene, Texas, has been found on a life raft, and the War department said hopefully, it is "believed possible that other survivors may be on life rafts in the same general vicinity."

Cherry, the department reported, although weakened by about three weeks exposure to sun and sea, is "in good condition." He was the pilot of the Rickenbacker plane.

Many Join in Search

An intensive search was begun immediately upon receipt of word that Cherry had been picked up. Planes were sent to the area. Army aircraft and surface vessels enroute to the South Pacific fighting zone were ordered to fan out and cover as much of the Pacific's surface as possible.

With seven army fliers, Rickenbacker was enroute to the war zone himself, to make a survey of air force operations there for Secretary (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Fall of Tobruk Blow to Rommel, Simpson Asserts

Allies Rapidly Closing 900
Mile Gap in North Africa

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the fall of Tobruk and the British in Eastern Libya and indicated American-British advance from the west into Tunisia the original 1,500-mile gap between the jaws of the Allied trap closing on Axis desert army in Africa has Rommel's shattered and fleeing shriveled to 900 miles.

Against that dual threat, driving in upon him from both sides, is a pace unmatched in any previous phase of the give-and-take British-Axis campaign in Africa, Rommel's chances of escaping complete annihilation are dwindling every hour. There are strong indications that Berlin already has abandoned hope of salvaging what it can from Africa by sea and air evacuations.

Tobruk is of extreme practical, as well as psychological value to the British. It pushes forward a British supply advance base, fed by sea as well as land, to sustain and speed up the pursuit of the Axis army to its ultimate annihilation. It enormously strengthens British control of the vitally important eastern Mediterranean.

Axis Troops in Flight

The westward British have encountered for days virtually no Axis air opposition. Rommel's men are running almost unsheltered from air strafing.

What has become of German-Italian air power in Africa is a puzzling enigma. It may have been massed westward to meet the American occupation of French Morocco, Algeria and Tunisia. Insistent but unconfirmed Axis reports of damage inflicted on British-American warcraft and shipping suggest that.

Roosevelt Orders Aid for Africans

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt late today directed the Lend-Lease administration to extend food, clothing, and arms to the peoples of the North African territories occupied by American troops.

The president, in a statement late today, said:

"No one will go hungry or without the other means of livelihood in any territory occupied by the United Nations, if it is humanly within our powers to make the necessary supplies available to them."

"Weapons also will be supplied to the peoples of these territories to hasten the defeat of the Axis."

This was interpreted to mean that the United States would furnish arms to Frenchmen in occupied French Morocco and Algeria, as well as to native Arabs and other groups willing to take up arms against Germany and Italy.

Tobruk Captured

The Axis was reported to have evacuated Syria oasis, 170 miles south of Sidi Barrani and just inside Egypt, on Nov. 8.

The abandonment of Tobruk, whose deep defense and wide harbor might have afforded a sea-borne escape for at least some of his tormented fighters, left Rommel with no apparent choice but to press on westward.

Allied bombers and pursuit planes hounding the fleeing columns west of Tobruk continued to have what was described as a "field day." They ranged as far westward as Tunis, attacking all transport and scarcely ever encountering an enemy fighter.

Six Planes Shot Down

Six Italian troop-carrying planes, loaded with Germans, were shot down as they flew north from Tunis, leading to speculation that the enemy might be trying to evacuate Tunisia ahead of the American push eastward.

Before abandoning Tobruk the Germans loaded vast stores of supplies on trucks and barges and started them westward, but every moving object afforded a prime target for British and American bombers sweeping overhead. Several barges were reported sunk before the British troops moved into Tobruk, and the coastal road was lined with shattered and burning trucks. Only one Allied plane was lost in all yesterday's operations.

Wipes Out Old Score

The quick and almost effortless capture of Tobruk at 9:30 a. m. Egyptian time (3:30 a. m. ewt), and announced in a terse special communique, was greeted exultantly by the victorious Eighth army as it helped wipe out the memory of one of the most painful incidents of Rommel's overpowering charge into Egypt last June.

Once before, when an Axis army had swept eastward past the stronghold, a heroic Imperial garrison, largely Australian, had withstood a determined siege for eight months before being relieved. But last summer, when the Eighth army was retreating before Rommel and badly needed a diversion, the Tobruk force of more than 25,000 British succumbed so quickly that there was shock and anger in England.

stocks of war material. He named twelve Axis divisions, four German and eight Italian, which he said were no longer effective fighting formations, and ordered his clean-up forces onward with the words "good hunting to you all."

Unconfirmed reports said that Axis ships were setting sail from Bengasi, port on the Libyan coastal hump which lies 400 miles across the Gulf of Sirte from Tripoli itself.

The Allied force headquarters communique this evening confirmed Thursday's report that the east-bound Allied combined force in French North Africa had "extended the Algerian zone of occupation as far as Bona," sixty miles from the Tunisian frontier.

French Support Drive

These official reports said the eastward drive toward Tunisia was being executed "with the concurrence of the French."

Evidently the communique was more than a day behind actual operations, however, since Bona was first reported occupied Thursday morning by the Vichy radio.

Coincidentally the Vichy radio rebroadcast statements attributed to Gen. Auguste Nogues, the commissioner-general for Morocco, and Admiral Jean Darlan, the commander in chief of all Vichy armed forces.

The statements originally were said to have been read on radio Algiers by Yves Chatel, governor-general of Algeria, who went from Vichy to North Africa only two days ago.

Confer with Gen. Clark

Both Nogues and Darlan were reported conferring on formal armistice terms with Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark, U. S. A.

The Nogues-Darlan statements indicated at least a measure of collaboration with the Anglo-American occupiers, and went so far as to imply that the two were still acting in agreement with Marshal Petain and in the marshal's name.

Hence re-broadcast of the statements by radio Vichy assumed high significance. Previously it had been presumed that the station was under indirect German control since extension of German occupation to southern France.

Today, however, this same station also sent out liberal accounts of the German reverses in Libya.

As re-broadcast, Nogues' statement said:

"The Marshal (Petain), on Nov. 10, before the entry of German troops into the unoccupied zone appointed me his delegate in Africa, believing that admiral of the fleet Darlan was no longer free."

Admiral at Liberty

"Having arrived in Algeria I have ascertained that the admiral has regained full possession of his liberty. I discovered that we were in full agreement on the attitude to adopt."

"In consequence, in the name of the marshal and in agreement with him I give my powers into the hands of Admiral Darlan and place myself under his orders."

Darlan's statement, as heard here from Vichy, said: "I assume full responsibility for French interests in Africa in full freedom and accord with Gen. Nogues." He added that he had the approval of the north African French.

Darlan not only gave the cease-fire order to all French troops in North Africa Wednesday; he also has asked the French battle fleet at Toulon to sail for an Allied port in North Africa.

Meanwhile Axis broadcasts were expressing fear of an Allied blow in the Eastern Mediterranean, stemming at the Dodecanese Islands, off Turkey, from British Cyprus.

This could be the beginning of pretexts for a German invasion of Turkey, in an attempt to get to Syria.

The amphibious American-British armies under British General K. A. N. Anderson and American Major General Charles W. Ryder presumably were straddling the Algerian-Tunisian frontier when the first Nazi transports began taking off from Tunisian airports.

Six Planes Shot Down

Six of the big planes were shot down by RAF fighters operating, probably, out of Malta. At the time they were intercepted they were headed due north.

Across Libya to the east, the British Eighth army was reoccupying the scarred battlefields of Tobruk, which it lost so tragically last June 22 with 33,000 of its garrison.

The fleeing Germans left Tobruk's stores afire. Berlin boasted they had removed or destroyed everything of value. The Rommel columns, so relentlessly set apart in Egypt, were pounding pell-mell toward the Gulf of Sirte.

It seemed probable they would attempt to stand short of El Agheila, in a bottle-neck of the gulf shore.

El Agheila is about 150 miles southwest of Bengasi by the road around the gulf. It is 450 miles east of Tripoli.

But the Alexander-Ryder armies, measuring from the western Tunisian border, are only some 400 air-line miles northwest of Tripoli.

The radio at Rabat, which is American-occupied, reported: "Axis ships have left Bengasi, probably after evacuating the port."

Thus it appeared that Rommel would cut across the coastal hump below Bengasi to El Agheila.

Flees 300 Miles

On leaving Tobruk, he already had fled more than 300 miles from the British eighth army. He must travel somewhat in excess of that distance to get to El Agheila, with the British always at his heels.

There was no immediate way of telling whether the air-transported Germans who left Tunisia were men whom Hitler had counted on to hold up the Allied advance from Algeria, or whether they were demolition experts encharged with the destruction of installations which might have been of use to the Allies on arrival.

In any event, the news strengthened confidence in Allied circles that the Germans will have very little chance of keeping the Alexander-Ryder armies out of the French protectorate.

No more than a few thousand Germans are believed to have reached Tunisia, at any time.

Tunis Has Many Alerts

Today and last night the capital city of Tunis had repeated air raid alerts. Evidently the Allies were following up the original RAF blow, in which thirty-eight German planes were destroyed or damaged at a Tunis airfield.

Axis sources indicated there was another raid on a Tunis airfield last night.

Berlin and Rome expanded their claims of destruction and damage to Allied warships and merchant vessels off North Africa, both in the Atlantic and Mediterranean.

The Germans said U-boat and Axis plane attack had sunk one British cruiser, a destroyer and five transports, and had damaged eighteen other allied ships off the coast. The Italians said they sank three allied merchantmen and damaged eight other ships.

Again the Axis communique implied there was heavy damage to the Allied fleet which is supplying and reinforcing the Alexander-Ryder armies.

Claims Unconfirmed

Again all these claims were completely unconfirmed. In fact, responsible allied sources estimated that about half the attacking German planes had been destroyed.

For the whole North African campaign to date, an Allied spokesman said: "Preliminary and partial reports show that United States casualties have been extremely light."

Teen-Age Draftees Assured of Delay

BALTIMORE, Nov. 13 (AP)—Col. Henry C. Stanwood, state draft director, today assured 18 and 19 year olds that very few of them would be inducted before the first of the year.

Although President Roosevelt signed the teen-age draft bill today, Col. Stanwood pointed out that the teen-age eligibles would have to be processed. He said it would take time before they could be examined and classified for military service.

Col. Stanwood estimated that there are 50,000 eighteen and nineteen year olds in Maryland who are eligible for the draft.

of War Stimson. He had previously conducted a similar study in the European war theater.

On Oct. 21, a radio message was received from his plane saying it had slightly more than an hour's supply of gasoline.

In the days that followed, two people had refused to give up hope that he would be found. One of them, his wife, said:

"Eddie will turn up. He's too old a hand to get lost in any airplane now."

The other was Secretary Stimson, to whom Rickenbacker is a confidential advisor. The flier he said was "an exception to ordinary rules."

Rickenbacker first won fame in the first World war by shooting down a score of German planes in France. In late years he has done little active piloting, although he traveled extensively by air.

He survived the crash of an air liner near Atlanta two years ago. Others among the passengers and crew were killed, and Rickenbacker was severely injured. As soon as his broken bones had mended he was back in the air again.

In addition to Rickenbacker and Cherry, those on board the missing plane were: Col. Hans C. Adamson, Washington, D. C.; Lieutenants James C. Whitaker, Burlingame, Calif., and John J. De Angelis, Nesquehoning, Pa.; Staff Sergeant Nesquehoning, Pa.; Staff Sergeant James W. Reynolds, Fort Jones, Calif.; Sergeant Alexander T. Caczmarczyk, Torrington, Conn.; and Private John F. Bartek, Freehold, N. J.

See Freedom for India

Immediately preceding final adjournment the convention, after brief discussion, adopted a resolution urging President Roosevelt to exert his influence to secure immediate resumption of negotiations between England and India "looking toward the establishment of a national government in India that will mobilize the people and resources of that country for total war x x x."

The resolution dealing with the people of India said "The Atlantic Charter must be made a living reality for them," and resolved that:

"The CIO urges the president of the United States to exert his influence to secure the liberation of the Indian Congress leaders now imprisoned and the immediate resumption of negotiations between the British government and the representatives of the Indian people looking toward the establishment of a national government in India that will mobilize the people and resources of that country for total war and total victory over the Axis."

"La Boheme", Meets with Highest Approval of Enthusiastic Audience

Over 1,200 persons attended the opera, "La Boheme," last night in Port Hill high school auditorium, as the Cumberland Concert series opened its season.

Those familiar with opera praised the performance and the music as rating with the best ever presented here.

The cast, headed by Susan Fisher, William Hain and Frances Greer, supported by thirty-five singers from the ranks of the Metropolitan Opera company, about fifty other performers and thirty first class musicians gained early approval of the audience and held their close attention throughout the entire evening.

Sponsors of the opera and the series said last night they are highly pleased with the reception of the first presentation and are looking forward to a highly successful season. The opera last night is the first of five programs included in the series, and each ranks equally high with the others.

Scheduled to appear in Buffalo, N. Y., tonight the company of over 100 singers, players, musicians and other personnel left by bus and train immediately after the performance.

Chairman Flynn III

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 13 (AP)—Edward J. Flynn, 50, Democratic National Chairman, became ill today while motoring from Washington to New York and was taken to the Delaware Hospital. He was detained overnight for observation although hospital attaches said his condition was not serious.

Americans Deal

The navy communique said these were the only American vessels damaged during the Solomon action, in which several Japanese artillery batteries were knocked out of commission, large fires started, and the thirty enemy landing boats destroyed in a concentration of seventy-five found at Tassafaronga, about twelve miles west of the American airbase on Guadalcanal.

Gunboat Erie Damaged

The communique added, however, that in the Caribbean the gunboat Erie, commanded by Capt. Andrew R. Mack, of Londonderry, N. H., was damaged by an enemy submarine attack yesterday and beached off the southern coast of Curacao. No casualty reports have been received from the Erie.

The 2,000-ton Erie, which had accommodations for a crew of 243 officers and men, was launched at the New York Navy yard in January, 1936. She was armed with four six-inch guns and two saluting three-pounders.

The San Francisco was launched March 9, 1933, at the Mare Island navy yard. She is 588 feet long and has a standard displacement of 9,950 tons. She is armed with nine eight-inch guns, eight five-inch anti-aircraft guns and two small saluting cannon, and carries four planes. Her normal complement is 44 officers and 850 enlisted men.

The Buchanan, of 1,700 tons, was authorized in July, 1940, and was built by the federal shipbuilding and dry dock company, Kearny, N. J. Her armament is four five-inch guns and ten 21-inch torpedo tubes.

Immediately preceding final adjournment the convention, after brief discussion, adopted a resolution urging President Roosevelt to exert his influence to secure immediate resumption of negotiations between England and India "looking toward the establishment of a national government in India that will mobilize the people and resources of that country for total war x x x."

The resolution dealing with the people of India said "The Atlantic Charter must be made a living reality for them," and resolved that:

"The CIO urges the president of the United States to exert his influence to secure the liberation of the Indian Congress leaders now imprisoned and the immediate resumption of negotiations between the British government and the representatives of the Indian people looking toward the establishment of a national government in India that will mobilize the people and resources of that country for total war and total victory over the Axis."

Mrs. Hobby Wants To Expand WAACs At Rapid Rate

Hopes To Have 18,000 in Uniform by March
1943

By RUTH COWAN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—Director Oveta Culp Hobby of the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps highly enthusiastically over the service she saw Britain's women in uniform render, was back today with recommendations for expanding the number and duties of the WAACs.

Looking fit after her strenuous three-week inspection of British women in military and naval service, Mrs. Hobby said she was reporting to the army general staff how the WAACs can be increasing in this country and how they could serve in England with American forces.

Mrs. Hobby, wife of a Houston, Tex., newspaper publisher and mother of two young children, flew to London with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt who is still in Great Britain.

WAACs Plan Drive

At her first press conference after her return, Mrs. Hobby announced that the WAACs would shortly begin a recruiting drive for reserves. She said that in addition to the second WAAC training school to be opened Dec. 1 at Daytona Beach, Fla., others will be opened later.

Since the first WAACs reported to Fort Des Moines July 20, the number enrolled, including those in service and in training, is now 7,442. An additional 2,000 are in the reserve corps awaiting orders to go to a training center.

Wants Force of 12,500

Mrs. Hobby said it was hoped to have 12,500 by the end of the year and 18,000 by March, 1943. The bill creating the corps permits the voluntary enrollment of 150,000 but President Roosevelt asked that the number be held to 25,000 for the present.

The director reported that the British WAACs now have sixty-two specialized lines of duty and the ATS sixty, varying from waiting on tables to helping man anti-aircraft posts. The British women's military units started from five specialized lines.

The WAACs have started with four—cooks and bakers, clerical, communications and motor corps—Mrs. Hobby said, adding that four or five new types of training which she could not disclose now, would be introduced at Daytona Beach.

integration of the Italo-German coalition in the nearest future.

Answer to Skeptics

"The campaign in Africa refutes once more the skeptics who affirm that Anglo-American leaders are not capable of organizing a serious war campaign. There can be no doubt that no one but first rate organizers could carry out such serious war operations as the successful landings in North Africa across the ocean, as the quick occupation of harbors and wide territories from Casablanca to Bougie, and as the smashing of Italo-German armies in the western desert being effected with such mastery."

"Two: How effective has this campaign been in relieving pressure on the Soviet union and what further aid does the Soviet union await?"

"Answer: It is yet too soon to say to what an extent this campaign has been effective in relieving immediate pressure on the Soviet union. But it may be confidently said that the effect will not be a small one and that a certain relief in pressure on the Soviet Union will result in the nearest future."

Outlook Favors Allies

"But that is not the only thing that matters. What matters first of all is that since the campaign in Africa means that the initiative has passed into the hands of our allies, the campaign changes radically the political and war situation in Europe in favor of the Anglo-Soviet-American coalition: that that campaign undermines the prestige of Hitlerite Germany as a leading force in the system of Axis powers and demoralizes Hitler's allies in Europe; that the campaign released France from her state of lethargy, mobilizes anti-Hitler forces of France and provides a basis for building up an anti-Hitler French army."

"That the campaign creates conditions for putting Italy out of commission and for isolating Hitlerite Germany; finally, that the campaign creates the prerequisites for establishment of a second front in Europe nearer to Germany's vital centers which will be of decisive importance for organizing victory over Hitlerite tyranny."

"Three: What possibility is there of Soviet offensive power in the east joining the Allies in the west to hasten the final victory?"

"Answer: There need be no doubt that the Red army will fulfill its task with honor as it has been fulfilling it throughout the war."

"With respect,

(signed) J. STALIN."

Seek Release of Deputy, Convicted Of Abusing 7 of Jehovah's Witnesses

BALTIMORE, Nov. 13 (AP)—The circuit court of appeals for the fourth circuit was asked today to reverse the conviction and punishment of Martin Louis Catlette, Richwood, West Virginia, deputy sheriff who had been fined $1,000 and sentenced to serve one year in prison.

It was related in court that Catlette and Bert Stewart, Richwood police chief, forced eight members of Jehovah's Witnesses to be roped together and marched through town after castor oil had been forced down four of them.

Stewart did not appeal his conviction. He had been fined $250 on a charge of aiding and abetting Catlette to violate the civil rights statute by depriving the sect members of rights guaranteed by the constitution.

The incident took place in Richwood on June 29, 1941.

Stipulated testimony set forth the following to be facts:

Facts in the Case

Seven Jehovah's Witnesses arrived in Richwood, and three of them went to the town hall to ask the mayor for police protection while they carried on their work. The others remained behind in an automobile.

The mayor was not in, but Catlette and Stewart were there, and they held the three sect members while the deputy sheriff called the American Legion and said: "We have three of the xxx here and are rounding up the others."

As a mob of 1,500 persons gathered outside, the four other Jehovah's Witnesses were marched into the mayor's office.

Catlette then removed his Nicholas county deputy sheriff's badge and declared that the law would not be involved in what happened next.

Eight ounces of castor oil were forced down each of three witnesses. A fourth protested, and he was forced to drink sixteen ounces.

Then all seven were tied together by a rope, and marched to the Richwood post office, where an American flag was flying. Testimony in court today indicated that Catlette read the preamble to the American Legion constitution, then all saluted the flag except the Jehovah's Witnesses.

The seven were marched to the outskirts of the town, where they were set free.

They had been held captive six and one half hours.

Counsel for Catlette argued today that the information against his client was insufficient and that the jury had been improperly instructed by trial judge, Ben Moore. The case was tried at Charleston, W. Va.

Both ships were prefabricated. This production line type of ship construction is strictly an American innovation adapted from automobile-making methods to meet the crying need of cargo ships.

Entire sections of the ship, complete even to such details as deadlights hung over portholes ready for the first blackout, are built in other parts of the yard, many of them before the keel is laid. They are swung in place by cranes, and welded onto the ship.

There Is Something Screwy Here

IN THE RECENT CAMPAIGN, Governor O'Connor sought to show that he and his administration had wrought a financial miracle for the state of Maryland.

"What has been the result of this sound business administration?" he asked; and the answer, he said, was that Maryland's credit rating has been restored, that economies are in effect and that "we have taken our surplus and returned a large part of it to the taxpayers."

Nobody could figure out just how and what part of the surplus achieved through excessive income taxation had been returned to the people; but evidently a number of Marylanders were fooled by the governor's intimation that the state was running along splendidly so far as its finances were concerned, which should have been the case in view of the unwarranted taxes mulcted from the people.

But what's this we are hearing now in a report on state finances just released by the federal department of Commerce? Why, the citation of figures showing that during the last fiscal year, in spite of outrageous income taxes and a surplus, the O'Connor administration actually ran the state into further debt!

The department's report shows that while thirty-three states reduced their gross debts during 1942, Maryland was one of the remaining fourteen whose debt climbed. Not only that, but it climbed more than the average of those that increased their debt. The average increase of the fourteen states increasing their debts was six per cent, but Maryland achieved the unenviable distinction of increasing its debt 8.4 per cent.

Maryland began the 1942 fiscal year with a gross debt of $53,500,000, the department report states, and finished with a debt of $58,000,000, an increase of $4,500,000.

One could say in ironical vein that this is a marvelous showing; but for those of us who are practical-minded, the appropriate observation is that there is something screwy about this record, in view of the mulcting of Marylanders through an unconscionable income tax. And Governor O'Connor had the brass to boast that he and his administration had actually bettered the state's credit standing. Certainly no concern or individual would be considered to have bettered its credit rating by coming out of a fiscal year with a heavier debt than that which obtained when the year began.

The department report should prompt the Maryland State Public Expenditures Council to formulate a chapter on the subject. The people are entitled to know why the state debt was run up, why it was not reduced through use of some of the state surplus, and what is to be done with the surplus if it is not to be used for paying off debt.

Chocks for Road Tax Burdens

IT IS of interest to note that citizens of three additional states voted overwhelmingly in the recent elections to amend their state constitutions so as to require that all special highway taxes be spent for highway purposes.

The states are West Virginia, Oregon and Iowa. They increase to fourteen the number of states having constitutional requirements that all special highway taxes be dedicated to highway purposes, these being Kansas, Missouri, California, Colorado, Idaho, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Proponents of these road amendments at the elections declared that because of reduced highway revenues resulting from wartime restrictions on motor vehicles, it is more important than ever to protect highway funds against diversion to non-highway purposes in order to insure maintenance of existing roads to save tires and equipment, building and modernizing highways for strategic military purposes and modernization of highways after the war.

An equally important consideration lies in the relief that can be afforded the tax-overburdened motorists. If road taxes are used for other purposes, the motor vehicle taxation will never be reduced and will, wherever possible, be increased. But when sufficient funds can be raised for construction and maintenance, and utilized for such purposes, the load on motorists will likely not be made heavier, and when adjustments can be made through final completion of the major construction requirements, the load can, as it should, be made lighter.

Filipino Anniversary A Symbol of Freedom

TOMORROW marks an anniversary of which wartime American can be proud. Seven years ago, on November 15, 1936 the government of the Philippine commonwealth was inaugurated.

This was the near-climax of many years of friendship between the people of America and the people of the Philippines. The final climax will come, of course, after the Japanese are thrown out of the islands—and the independent Philippine republic is established.

The early years of America in the Philippines were troubled. But out of them there slowly grew a spirit of understanding. Over and over, American leaders assured the Filipinos that the United States did not look upon the Philippines as a colony peopled by an inferior race. Rather, America's mission was one of education and friendship. In 1916, the Jones act promised Philippine independence as soon as that was practical. The promise was kept. In 1934, Congress passed the Tydings-McDuffie act, which President Roosevelt signed. This act provided that the people of the Philippines would write a democratic constitution, under which a temporary commonwealth government would be created, preparatory to the establishment of complete independence.

The story of the Philippines is not the case-history of a colonial people forced to play ball with more powerful masters. Rather, it is the story of 17,000,000 self-respecting human beings, confident in their future, choosing the sides of freedom because they knew that freedom was already their priceless possession.

Philippine Commonwealth day, therefore, marks a series of events which stand as a symbol of what can and should and will be done with all peoples everywhere, no matter what their race, or color, or faith, or previous condition of servitude.

America's Army Second to None

AMERICA'S GROWING ARMY, now inexorably stepping up its pressure against the enemy on a half dozen fronts, will receive a new increment of a million men before the first of the year. That will bring the total to approximately 5,500,000. During 1943 the army will be increased by the addition of 2,000,000 more inductees, for a grand total of 7,500,000. This American army, when well trained and fully equipped, will be a match for any other in the world regardless of size.

This is not empty boasting. We have the materials and the machines for making our army the best equipped in the world. On top of that we have a soldier morale that already has manifested itself on a number of fronts. Add to that native ingenuity and the boon of a sense of humor, and it builds up to something close to invincibility.

According to administration plans, most of the 2,000,000 to be drafted next year will come from the teen age ranks, boys of 18 and 19, many of whom are now in school or college. Industries are not to be stripped of essential production men.

Americans have ample reason to wish that these young men did not have to go. But war is war. We have enemies in the East and in the West who have dedicated themselves to our destruction. Young American boys must go into battle because in this war started by the Fascists young boys of the predatory Axis sink our ships, man planes that bomb innocent men, women and children and occupy the front lines wherever the enemy is engaged in his program of conquest and destruction.

Eighty-one ships were launched in the United States during October. If this keeps on champagne manufacturers may be forced to up their output.

Puerto Ricans demand the resignation of Rex Tugwell—remember him?—as governor. But there must be some place to which he can be sent.

Unity prevails throughout the country, we learn. That is, until the All-American football team arguments start.

Eating Your Words

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Hastily I said something. . . Without thought I send a few words forth to wing their way from mouth to ear.

Swiftly the Hawk of Truth, waiting in the sun, darted down upon my fluttering words and sank his talons in them and brought them back to me and dropped them at my feet. . . all bloody, all quivering, all penitent and ashamed.

And the ruthless Hawk said to me, "Are these your words?" "Yes," I said and averted my eyes.

"Then eat them!" screamed the Hawk of Truth and flew swiftly away.

So I ate them.

The words you wish you hadn't spoken make a nauseating dish.

They are tainted, they are rotten, and filthy grubs congregate upon them. You wish they weren't yours. They form a ghastly banquet.

They are tough. You chew and chew and chew upon a bitter cud. There are rocks in them that break your teeth. They are bitter and they sting. And the more you eat of them the more of them they seem to be. They multiply as you devour them.

Soon you've had enough. They are dry and you choke on them. You look around for a drink of cool water to wash them down. . . No water anywhere. You eat in a desert. A mirage appears. You see purple grapes, hanging from golden and scarlet vines. The breeze brings fragrant odors of rich food to you. A silver spring gushes from a green meadow. . . You stretch forth a hand and the fair banquet disappears. And the Hawk of Truth perches on a lean, dead limb and screams: "Eat every scrap of those words you spoke. You can't have anything else until you've eaten it all."

It's no fun eating your words. You say something you shouldn't. You lie or you release a truth you should have caged. And long afterwards, years later perhaps, you crawl away into a dark and private corner and eat those words you shouldn't have spoken. They come back to you and you know you must eat them.

Future Relations With Russia Are Seen As Puzzling

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON. — World democracy's post-war relations with Soviet Russia can't but have been a puzzling thought to heads of the United Nations governments as they were showering Premier Stalin with their felicitations upon the twenty-fifth anniversary, recently, of the Bolshevik revolution.

Of course, no anti-Axis individual begrudged the Soviet folk a word of these congratulations or dissented from the words of praise bestowed upon 'em for the valor of the fight they have been putting up against Herr Hitler's forces plus a little pro-German aid from Signor Mussolini.

Nevertheless, the democratic chorus did sound rather odd, considering its authors' tone of voice toward the Kremlin at the beginning of the current conflict.

True, if, when Adolf first took the warpath, Moscow immediately had proclaimed its democracy and aligned itself against him, the real democracies' appreciation of it would be pretty natural.

Russia, however, at that stage of the game, had more or less of an actual alliance with the Reich. We'd disliked the Stalin regime on general principles and its then-existing hook-up with Berlin made us all the sorer. Furthermore the Moscow aggregation showed all signs of remaining pro-Axis—not vehemently and belligerently so, but at least passively.

In Self Defense

It wasn't until the Communist bunch was attacked by the Nazis that they began to resist—because they HAD to, on their own account; not from any good will they had no reason to feel any such good will, remembering all the democratic mean things that had been said about 'em.

The fact is that, in so far as Comrade Stalin and his associates are concerned, they've accepted belated democratic tributes rather graciously. They COULD have remarked, "Well, you boys have changed your tune pretty noticeably, but we understand perfectly WHY you've done so." Instead they've been very polite about it.

Personalities have figured in the matter.

Originally Premier Stalin was represented as a regular ogre.

Today he's advertised as a fine, friendly chap. An anarchist can BE that, personally, but I never heard it democratically admitted until very recently—for Joe Stalin's benefit.

Emergency Situation

This is an emergency situation, though. For the time being, all rules go into the discard. What about the post-war period?

Won't it be extremely difficult for democracy to acquiesce in the present Russian politico-economic system as a permanent and to associate with it on that basis? And yet won't the democracies be stumped to tell the Bolsheviks? — "You helped us tremendously and we've said you're all O. K. — but now you're a crew of criminals again?"

Or will the Russians flop over democracyward?

Or can the two philosophies parallel one another?

Or, can they merge a little bit, along their edges, and get along together?

If anybody's going to change, I'd think that the Russians would have to.

There's this to be said about 'em: Happy Medium?

They had a heck of a punk government before their revolution. They switched violently to the opposite extreme. Possibly they can be persuaded to modify it a bit. Its first manifestations of modification probably were excessive.

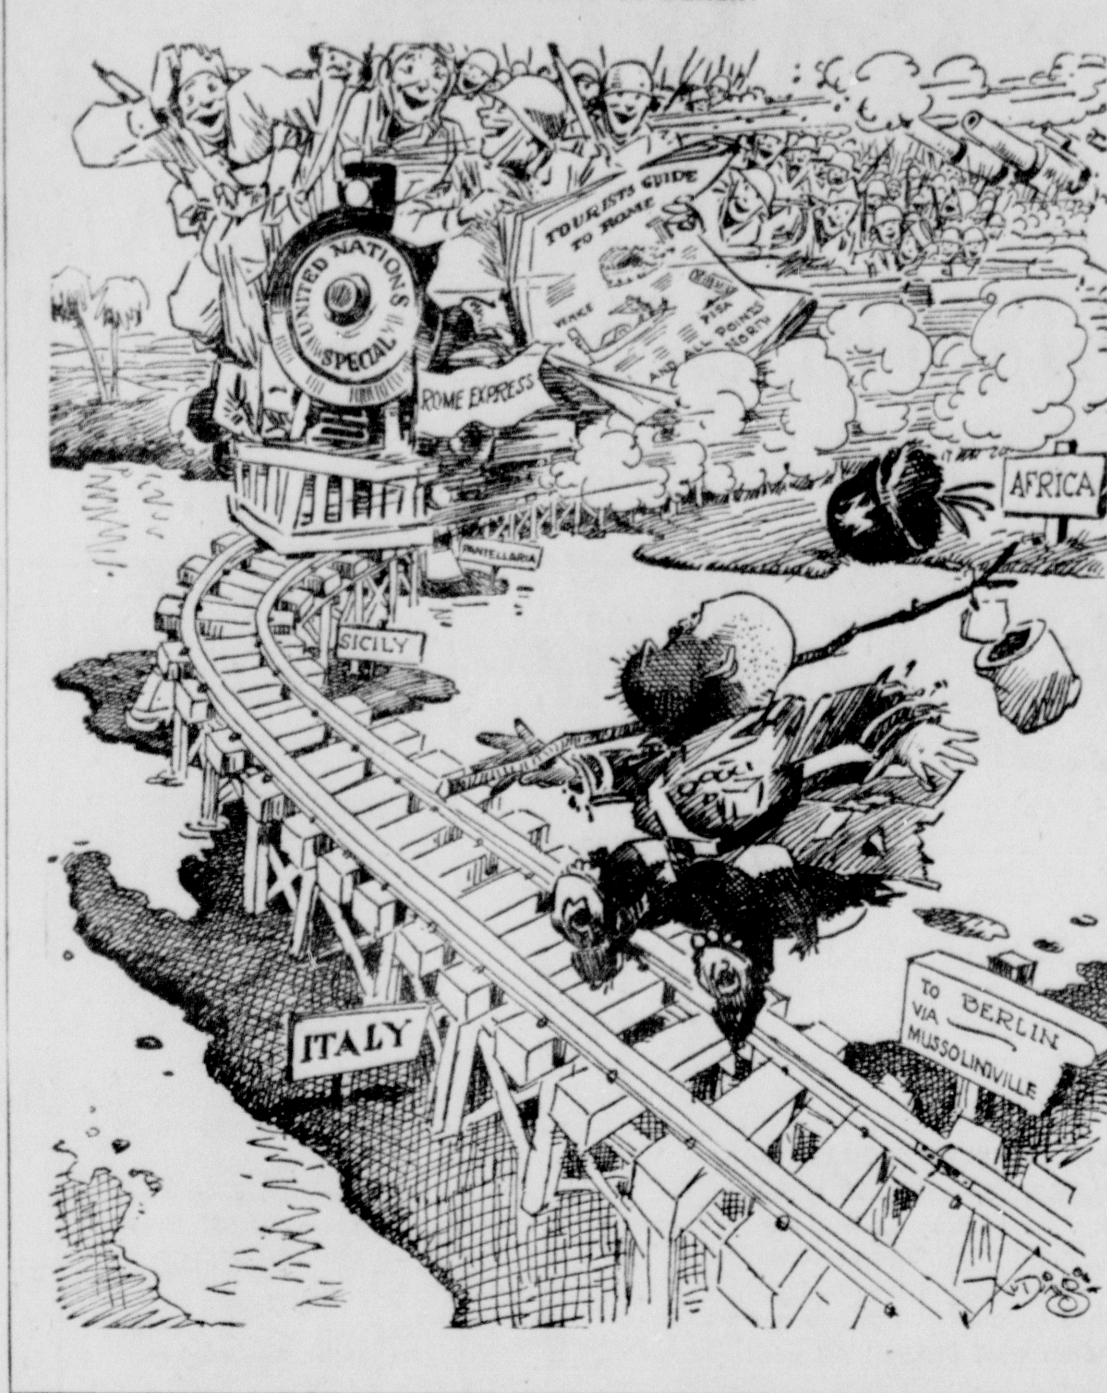

It'll depend, in all likelihood, upon the democracies' sense of readjustment properties. They'll be able to get along with the Russians if they're nice to 'em. They are, almost needless to say, more civilized than the Russians are. Here, and there, they'll find a civilized

THE NEW ROAD TO BERLIN

Balance Sheet of American Offensive Shows Heavy Liabilities, Sullivan Says

By MARK SULLIVAN

President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Navy Knox have done what may seem strange. They urged newspaper men to urge the public not to take too optimistic a view of the American achievement in North Africa. Avoidance of extremes of public emotion, of over-dramatizing war news, is much on the president's mind, he refers to it frequently at press conferences. Essentially the counsel is against extremes both ways—extremes of optimism in times of good news, of pessimism in times of bad. What Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Knox have in mind is expressed in two lines of Kipling's prescription for personal manliness, in "If":

"If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster,
And treat those two imposters
just the same. . . .
Yours is the Earth, and everything that's in it. . . ."

Let us, then, just as an exercise of the mind, take a conservative view, a minimum view. One way to do this would be to look at the North African event, not as if it were we who did it, and not as if our fortunes were involved—look at it as if it were something done by some other nation, toward which we are neither friendly nor unfriendly; look at it from the point of view of a disinterested outsider.

Great Achievement

One part of the achievement ought not to be minimized—it has been done, and it is great. We have successfully landed a large armed force, perfectly equipped in all respects as we wished it equipped. We have landed it at a point across an ocean, some 4,000 miles from our shores, over a course infested by submarines, the latter part subject to intense airplane attack. This ranks as a fine feat of military movement.

With this force we have taken effective possession of territory nearly a quarter as large as the United States. But this cannot be looked upon as a difficult feat. Boastfulness about it, such as sometimes infects breathless radio news and press headlines, makes us seem a little ridiculous. It was by no means a case of conquering enemy territory. There was an army in occupation, but it was a bewildered army, not sure to whom it owed allegiance, whether to Vichy France, or to the Free French, not sure whether it should resist us or welcome us.

Having landed successfully and occupied the territory, look to the future and estimate both the liabilities and the assets we have acquired.

Heavy Liability

One liability is heavy—the necessity of keeping open the 4,000 mile line of communication between our home shores and our army in North Africa. We must do this to provide supplies for our expeditionary force, and to increase that force, because at its present size it is not enough for the purpose we have in view.

The line of communication is subject, at every point, to attack by submarines. It is certain that at this moment Hitler is mobilizing all his strength to focus with desperate daring upon our line to North Africa. Also, the latter part of the line is subject to formidable airplane attack. This part of our line is close to the line by which Britain formerly supplied her army in Egypt through the Mediterranean. It is a fact that the attacks upon the line by enemy submarine and air forces were so successful that for months Britain was obliged to abandon it, and supply her Egyptian force by a long route around the African continent.

Big Shipping Job

Keeping open our line of communication to our army in North Africa is going to be a heavy drain upon our shipping and upon our navy—at a time when, as to both shipping and navy, we have not as much as we should like, and have urgent uses for it in other areas of the global war.

Granted that we can keep the line of communication open, we acquire assets, great ones. After we have established and adequately equipped bases in North Africa, we can bomb Italy by air as fiercely as we have planes for the purpose—and production in America is now such that we shall have many. By our strength in the air we should be able to make the Mediterranean an Allied sea. Assuming we can do this, it will be an immense stride in offensive war, opening the way to yet others.

Nation Committed

There is a liability we must not forget. We have now committed ourselves to a major military enterprise on the European continent. Quite certainly our engagement there will lead soon to aggressive action by Japan in the Pacific. This liability, however, does not come upon us wholly as a consequence of our North African expedition. This liability has been inherent in our military situation from our entrance into the war. From the beginning, our position has been the dangerous one of a nation fighting a war on two fronts, far distant from each other.

After all, there is this. Three years ago, had Hitler looked forward, he would have said that by 1942 he would have taken Africa, and been in South America, moving toward us. Actually, we are in Africa, moving toward Germany.

The Rabbit Fever Menace

From the Connellsville, Pa., Courier

With the hunting season in full swing a warning of the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania may be looked upon as timely.

"Beware of the lackadaisical rabbit," it reads.

The reason:

Tularemia, or rabbit fever, takes the pep out of a rabbit and makes him an easy mark for the hunter.

"This serious disease is transmissible to man when he handles, skins, or dresses a sick rabbit," adds the society spokesman, "and in a recent survey of 10,800 victims of rabbit fever, death came to 537 persons, or a little over five per cent."

Housewives are cautioned to wear rubber gloves when skinning and dressing rabbits brought home from the field, but proper cooking renders even tularemic rabbits safe for eating.

Tularemia was first discovered in Tulare county, Calif., in gray squirrels, and spread to other rodents and other states, being brought into Pennsylvania through the importation of rabbits from other states.

Fuel Mess Brings Serious Health Menace to Nation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—Food and heat are so closely related to the health of a nation that, as prospective shortages appear on the horizon, the risks and dangers to be encountered this winter are perhaps not fully realized.

There has been a tendency to minimize the shortages and to give the impression that all is well. Actually there is grave danger that widespread suffering may develop this winter because of a lack of heat. At a time when medical staffs are depleted due to the needs of the army and navy, the nation cannot afford to leave anything undone which may relate to the prevention of illnesses.

The winter season brings its normal quantity of colds, but if the heating problem is not solved, America will face a much more serious winter than it did in any of the months of the last war. It will be recalled that Britain suffered considerably during the last war because of lack of fuel but America did not. The American people this time, however, are face to face with uncomfortable periods indoors, all because the fuel problem has not been properly handled.

No Check Up

The difficulty seems to be that oil is being left to the public, including the industrial users, to apportion among themselves, and there is no check up to see whether larger inventories than necessary have been accumulated. The residential user has been urged to convert to coal, but it is not clear that all the coal needed would be available if the conversion to coal were universal. Certainly there has been no rationing of all fuels or allocations to plants on the basis of actual needs.

One reason for the situation is that there has been a conflict of jurisdiction and no clear-cut policies on the part of governmental agencies concerned. The secretary of the Interior, for instance, does not possess all the power necessary to allocate fuel. The responsibility for the decision rests with the chairman of the War Production Board. And whether Mr. Henderson's rationing system or Mr. Ickes' bureau are to handle the matter of checking up on oil supply and its distribution to users, the fact remains that such a directive has not yet been issued.

Settlement Vital

Mr. Ickes has lately been getting complaints from the oil industry for his co-operation with the producers and distributors and there are many in that industry who feel that the entire fuel problem should be turned over to him. But the importance of bringing some sort of settlement to the oil shortage is vital at the moment and will become one of the most serious of the nation's complaints if winter comes and fuel to keep residences warm has not been properly distributed.

Fuel is a basic raw material which has to be allocated just as any other. Industrial users of raw materials lately have been required to submit to a controlled materials plan, requiring a scheduling of needs in such fashion that surpluses and gluts in any one area or plant are involved. Fuel will have to be accorded the same treatment, but to administer such a huge undertaking will require a separate unit either inside or outside the War Production Board.

It is said that there is no disposition at WPB to take over fuel rationing or control but that there is already considerable argument in favor of selecting the agency that should handle the job and giving it full authority to go ahead.

Food Shortages, Too

Somewhat the same difficulty prevails with respect to the food supply. With record harvests and record production of food supplies, there are shortages in the stores in certain areas. These are not yet serious, but they may become so if no remedy is applied to the present maldistribution.

The third problem of major importance on the home front—manpower—needs also some clarification both as to policy and personnel. It is apparent that legislation is not going to be sought but that a plan for voluntary co-operation of management and labor and the armed services is to be tried first. But at the head of such an important activity some outstanding administrator is needed. Some very good men have lately been placed in positions of responsibility in WPB, and the trend is toward efficiency. But until the president and Chairman Donald Nelson pick a man for manpower director, another for food administrator, and a third man to handle fuel, the home front will lose valuable time needed to prepare for a dangerous winter.

Football Tilts Get Right of Way On the Airwaves This Afternoon

South and Middle West Will Supply Material for Listeners

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
NEW YORK, Nov. 13. — Once more football gets the right of way on the Saturday afternoon network. Both the South and the Middle West are supplying the material, at least so the announced schedules indicate.

One game, Georgia Tech vs. Alabama, is to be heard on two networks, CBS and the Blue. CBS will have its Ted Husing and the Blue its Harry Wismer to give the details from 2:45 until around 5:30.

NBC and Bill Stern are to be stationed in plain sight of the Michigan-Notre Dame contest, also from 2:45 on.

MBS reports that it expects to describe the battle between Illinois and Ohio, State that also being scheduled to reach the air at 2:45. After this game it will have the close of Iowa vs. Minnesota.

Special from Chicago

That part of the NBC network which at 10:30 does not carry the Grand Old Opry from Nashville will present from Chicago a Men and Missions Sunday program.

Among those to participate are Charles P. Taft, of the Federal Security Agency; Francis B. Sayre, United States high commissioner to the Philippines; and Dr. A. H. Compton, of the University of Chicago.

The Blue at 10 in the spot which Allen Prescott held forth before he joined the navy now has the Yankee Doodle Minstrels, built around Pick and Pat (allias Molasses and January).

The Chicago Theater of the Air, MBS at 9, is presenting "The Fortune Teller", the singers to be Marion Chaire, Thomas L. Thomas and Attilio Baggiore.

Joseph C. Grew, ambassador to Japan up to December 7, is to be heard on NBC at 2 from the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations in a talk on "Our War With Japan."

Three Presidents Are To Be Heard Sunday

Three presidents—F. D. Roosevelt, of the United States; Manuel Quezon, of the Philippines; and Avila Omacho, of Mexico—are to speak in an all-network broadcast Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The half-hour program is in observance of Philippines day, which marks the seventh anniversary of the islands as a commonwealth. Regular programs have been set aside for the broadcast.

Because of this event, the usual hour's concert by the NBC symphony has been reduced to thirty minutes, beginning on NBC at 5:30. Leopold Stokowski, who this year is alternating as director with Arturo Toscanini, will make his seasonal debut in a program of American compositions.

Welles Series To Start

Orson Welles's Sunday series, Hello Americans, set to begin two weeks ago, finally is to get under way on CBS at 8. He plans to use material gathered on his recent South American tour, and for the opening program will salute Brazil.

Drew Pearson is changing time for his commentary on the Blue to 7. Howard Barlow again is to direct the New York Philharmonic in its CBS concert at 3, the program to include the first radio performance of Deems Taylor's "Marco Takes a Walk." . . . The Official Army hour, NBC at 3:30, is to include some data about the new highway to Alaska through Canada.

Parsons River City Club Will Honor Farmers

Farming for Better Living Project Banquet Will Be Held Dec. 11

PARSONS, Nov. 13.—Tucker county farmers and their wives who have completed the 1942 Farming for Better Living Project will be guests of the Parsons River City club at a county wide dinner in Parsons on Friday evening, December 11.

There are forty-four farmers in this county enrolled in the project for the year, but only those with their projects completed will be eligible for the dinner. Five cash awards will be made at the dinner to the farmers scoring highest in the project. The top ranking farmer will receive $25 cash and will be declared the county's champion "Better Living Farmer" for 1942. He will also be eligible to compete for the various Upper Monongahela Valley sweepstakes awards to be made at a regional dinner held in Clarksburg in January.

The second highest scoring farmer will receive $10 in cash, the third prize will be $5, fourth prize, $3, and the fifth prize will be $2. Donors of the awards are Senator A. L. Helmick, Thomas, the Tucker county Bank of Parsons, The Farmers and Merchants Bank of Thomas, and the Upper Monongahela Valley Association.

Last year's winner for Tucker county was Selby Adams of St. George.

To Sell Typewriters

The Tucker County Board of Education met last evening in Parsons and voted to sell twenty per cent of their typewriters in the three high schools of the county to the War Production Board. This will reduce the number of typewriters to fifteen in the three schools.

The board also set the date for the next two holidays of this county. School will be closed on Wednesday evening, November 25 and reconvene on November 30 for the Thanksgiving holidays.

The Christmas holidays will start on the morning of December 23 and continue until January 4.

Cuppitt, superintendent of the schools of this county, stated that a music supervisor for the Thomas-Davis schools will be secured for the second semester of this school year.

McClung is a graduate of West Virginia university, agricultural department in 1941 and received his master's degree from the University of Maryland, Baltimore, in 1942. He specialized in livestock and poultry in both colleges and has been assistant county agent in Lewis county since July, 1942. He replaces Arnett L. Kidd, county agent for eleven years, who left four months ago to enter the United States Army.

Nurse Home on Leave

Lieut. Louise Johnson, Mitchell Field, Long Island, N. Y., has spent a few days in Davis with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Johnson. This will be her last leave of absence before being sent abroad for duty with the United States Army.

with a couple marrying if they have known each other well."

Need Spiritual Rearmament

Miss Weakland blames "greed and the desire for power" for the present world situation. "If the people who led us into this mess had the spirit of Christ," she says, "it just wouldn't have happened. Before our war and economic problems can be solved, we will have to have a spiritual rearmament."

And, Miss Weakland continued, "the world is a tough place for young people today. Religion is especially important now for the girls who are left at home—the wives, sisters, sweethearts and mothers. Those who can pray and have faith in God will get through better than those who don't."

Like many other young people today, Miss Weakland is interested in flying although she has no license. She has flown dozens of times though and sometimes "the pilot lets me take the stick."

Her interest in flying is not limited to herself. Miss Weakland relates, as her brother has been on aerial coastal patrol duty since May. At the present time he is at home recuperating from a crash several weeks ago which, incidentally, was his second crash within a short time.

Several weeks before his plane crashed while taking off, another ship settled in the Pacific but he and his companion were rescued after floating in the water several hours.

Twenty Years a Preacher

Miss Weakland, now twenty-seven years of age, is in her twentieth year as a preacher, having started at the age of seven years.

Asked how she happened to get into evangelistic work, Miss Weakland answered that she "just grew up in it" since her parents were in evangelistic work too.

During her career, Miss Weakland has visited all but three or four states in the union as well as Mexico and Canada. This is her third visit to Cumberland and her longest. On both her other appearances she remained for one night only.

Accompanying her is Miss Marjorie Pierson, her secretary, who has been with her for seventeen years. Before joining Miss Weakland, Miss Pierson was secretary of a Baptist church in Los Angeles where the former's father was minister.

During their visit here, Miss Weakland and Miss Pierson are staying at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Edwin W. Saylor. The first week of services Miss Weakland has been conducting in First Baptist church, where the Rev. Mr. Saylor is pastor, ends tonight but she will continue to hold services every night with exception of Monday for the next two weeks.

Evangelist Will Speak at Three Services Sunday

Miss Betty Weakland Says Bible Outlines System for Getting Rich

Betty Weakland, who has been preaching nightly during the past week in the First Baptist church, has promised to present "The Greatest Religious Surprise Cumberland Has Ever Witnessed" in the service at 7:45 tonight.

Three services have been scheduled for Sunday. At 10:50 her theme will be "The Preciousness of Christ." A mass meeting will be held at 3 o'clock when her subject will be "Jonah and the Hated Jew." At 7:45 she will speak on "Painting the Town Red."

In her message on "How to Get Rich Quickly and Stay Rich," Miss Weakland stated that God has a great system outlined in the Bible for getting rich. She said that it has never failed for those who have tried it.

"God says in effect," she continued, "I will furnish you with all the capital you need. I have given you all the natural resources, gold, minerals, coal, oil, rivers, lakes, oceans, cattle, the fresh air, your two hands, your intellect. All is yours, however, I do not expect you to return ten per cent to me. That is your obligation."

"Tithing was instituted long before the law was given to Moses. In the fourteenth chapter of Genesis we find Abraham refusing to rob God of a thread or a shoelatchet lest any one should say he had made Abraham rich. Abraham had made a covenant with the Lord to pay his tithe and the Lord made of him a rich man."

"When Jacob was alone in the wilderness with only a stone for a pillow he dreamed a dream in which he saw the angels of God ascending and descending a ladder. Above it stood the Lord who promised him great wealth and blessings. When Jacob awakened he declared that the Lord was in the place and made a vow to God that he would give Him a tenth of his wealth. Jacob doubtless made the covenant from a selfish standpoint because at the time he had nothing and he knew the Lord would have to provide the nine-tenths before he could give the tenth. The result was that Jacob became an extremely wealthy man."

In closing, Miss Weakland said, "everything we have comes from God, even our ability and power to earn money, and we surely ought to be glad to give Him His share."

Mrs. Emma B. Dill Is Informed of Grandson's Death

MEYERSDALE, Pa., Nov. 13 — The first war fatality to come close home to Meyersdale, was the announcement of the death of Lieut. William P. Kephart, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. P. Kephart, Greensboro, N. C., and grandson of Mrs. Emma B. Dill and the late William H. Dill, Meyersdale.

Mrs. Kephart, who recently spent several weeks here visiting her mother, Mrs. Dill, was visiting friends in Conneville when she was notified of her son's death. Dr. Kephart, who was in Iowa, and Mrs. Kephart returned to Washington, D. C., where their daughter resides.

Dr. and Mrs. Kephart knew that Lieut. Kephart was a member of the crew of the ill-fated carrier, U. S. Wasp, but recently had been informed he was safe. However, the message announcing his having been "killed in action," also stated that his body was temporarily interred where he fell, indicating that he was in action on land.

Lieut. Kephart, at the age of 27, joined the navy air corps shortly after his graduation from college. He received his training at Pensacola, Fla., and at San Diego, Calif. After receiving his wings he was transferred to Norfolk, Va., as instructor. Following the entry of the United States into the war, he was called to active duty. His last visit with his parents was in August, when he spent a few days with them at their home in Greensboro, N. C.

Lieut. Kephart, who as a child visited his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dill, was well known by many Meyersdale folks.

Churches To Mark Mission Sunday

Frostburg Congregations Will Join in Twelfth Annual Observance

FROSTBURG, Nov. 13 — The importance of Christian missions to a world at war will be the subject discussed from many local church pulpits Sunday by both pastors and laymen, as Protestant churches of Frostburg join in the twelfth annual observance of Men and Missions Sunday.

Laymen will speak in many of the churches in more than 2600 communities where Men and Missions Sunday is to be observed throughout the United States and Canada. The observance is sponsored by the Laymen's Missionary Movement, an inter-denominational organization of Christian laymen, whose national headquarters is in Chicago.

"Christian Laymen and Tomorrow's World" is the theme for the observance, which seeks to arouse the Christian laymen "to a sense of their personal responsibility for the missionary enterprises of their respective communions or denominations."

Emphasis will be placed in sermons and also four-minute speeches upon the significance of Christian missions to a war-torn world, and upon the fact that the missionary enterprise continues in many countries of the world where Christian teachings are badly needed to combat the inroads of totalitarian ideologies.

12 Slot Machines Are Confiscated By Mineral Sheriff

Two Custodians Are Questioned by Prosecuting Attorney

KEYSER, W. Va., Nov. 13 — A raid on Kelly Mansfield Post, American Legion club rooms and the Fraternal Order of Eagles' rooms, in Piedmont today by Mineral county authorities resulted in the confiscation of twelve slot machines and "taking into custody" the custodians of the two places.

Sheriff F. G. Davis, who conducted the raid, said Paul Graham, custodian of the Eagles' rooms, and Clarence Hudson, custodian of the Legion rooms, were questioned by Prosecuting Attorney Lester Reynolds and released for a hearing in magistrates' court next week.

Sheriff Davis said he confiscated four machines in the Legion rooms and eight in the Eagle home. The machines ranged from five to twenty-five cent denominations, he said.

Davis said the machines will be held as evidence until after the case is settled and will then be destroyed.

The raid was conducted on a search warrant issued by Prosecuting Attorney Reynolds. Deputy (Continued on Page 10, Col. 3)

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT
MARY HURRIED straight to the F. B. I. offices when she arrived at the Nordex plant. Today all was tense, efficient bedlam. F. B. I. men strode across the outer office on their way in or out of Danver's private quarters with urgent speed. His secretary, usually so pleasant, was too rushed with work to do more than motion Mary to a chair, indicating she would have to wait for her interview.

But Mary was in no mood to wait. Perhaps even a minute she was deciding the fate of Bruce Martin! She hovered over the secretary's desk and asked how soon she could see Mr. Danver.

"When the executive meeting's over," Danver's secretary answered without looking up from her work. Mary felt chills of apprehension creep up and down her spine. They were firing Bruce—or worse, planning to hold him in formal arrest over the sabotage trouble. She was sure of it! She looked hopelessly at the closed door. When the executive meeting was over, it would be too late. But it wasn't! He had to tell them! Possessed by the urgency of the thought, she rushed across the room and, before the secretary could call out, pushed open the door of Danver's private office.

Fourteen men looked up from the long conference table as the small, shining-eyed girl slipped into the room, and they watched her with amazement as she advanced upon them, with the reckless, violent speed of a cyclone. Danver stood up to stop her with frowning courtesy.

"Miss Dexter, if you'll wait in the outer office, I'll see you when the meeting is over."

Mary had reached Danver's side and she stood facing him, her slim body, in its green suede frock, trembling with determination, her green eyes blazing with purpose. "I can't wait," she said. "I have to give my report before this meeting—before they make any decisions!"

The Nordex officials regarded Mary with growing surprise. Danver with divided emotions. Beneath his perturbation over this unusual procedure, his keen analytical sense was delighting in its own error. Here was the quiet, retiring little girl whom he had hesitated to trust with an assignment requiring the slightest courage! A timid lioness, he thought. Women—no confound them and bless them—forever slipping through the bars of psychological charts! No way of measuring their potential courage and power when faced with danger to one they loved.

With a sudden gesture of friendly welcome, he moved aside to make room for her at the table, and introduced her as one of the Nordex workers co-operating with his department.

Mary told her story in a rush of eagerness; her assignment to question Joe Banks only at the luncheon table, his disobeying this order to go with him on a round of night clubs, her meeting Joe Banks' friends, and finally of Bruce Martin's disastrous adventure with the green sedan. She laid the flattened bullet in Danver's hand as she finished on a restatement of her belief in Bruce's innocence. Then, as she paused for breath, her eyes focused for the first time on the faces of her imposing audience. Her heart sank at their expressions. They had listened calmly to her evidence—evidence that she thought convincing. But they had not been convinced. They remained polite, sympathetic with her, but impassive.

She cried desperately, "But if Bruce Martin were a member of the sabotage ring, they would not be shooting at him, would they?"

One of the men spoke quietly. "You said, Miss Dexter, that Mr. Martin told you it was these men who had shot at him?"

Mary caught her breath in dismay as she realized where her story had fallen down. "He was telling the truth. I know he was telling the truth," she cried. "He doesn't have any idea I'm working with the F. B. I."

She felt Danver's hand on her shoulder, heard him thanking her and asking her to wait for her interview. Somehow she stumbled from the room to sit miserably in the outer office. She found herself feeling the same bitter resentment toward these men that Bruce felt. Why did they turn thumbs down on him—why did they refuse to trust him? It wasn't fair!

By the time Danver called her back in, seated her in her usual chair beside his large desk and settled back in his chair for their private interview, she had worked herself into a state of fury. She burst out with her feelings concerning the unfair treatment of Bruce Martin. She said that she would not go on working for a stubborn, prejudiced, blind group of men such as these. Bruce Martin was innocent and they were determined to pin this sabotage on him!

Danver was smiling thoughtfully, drumming his fingers on the desk as she talked. When she had finished, he raised his eyes for a quick, measuring scrutiny of her as she rose to leave, on the crest of her angry declaration. "Sit down," he said quietly. "Deep amusement was in his eyes, and friendly sympathy, punctuating the satisfaction of her dramatic exit."

Mary hesitated. The amusement left his eyes. He added thoughtfully, "Your indignation is failing to clear Bruce, although your testimony is understandable. But your evaluation of the executives is, I am afraid, unfair. Because, you see, you don't have all of the information on the case."

"I know that you are grounding

Ginger, Ray Co-Star
In Riotous Romance

If you've kept an ear to the movie ground, you'll know that one of the funniest stories ever written for films is Paramount's "The Major and the Minor," now playing at the Strand theater.

The picture, which co-stars Ginger Rogers and Ray Milland, is reputed to be a riot of laughs and unusual situations, all of which stem from Ginger's masquerade as a twelve-year-old so she can get from New York to her Iowa home by train on half-fare. Milland, a Major who teaches at a military academy, becomes embarrassingly involved when he helps her elude the suspicious conductors by taking her into his own compartment. His glib acceptance of Ginger's fantastic stories—the romantic complications that develop when his fiancée discovers Ginger in his berth and it becomes necessary for him to take Ginger to the academy to prove that she is really only a "minor"—all add up to one of the grandest comedies ever.

BOSTON BAKED BEANS . . . For after the game.

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER

Wide World Food Editor

For that after-the-game dinner or supper, you'll want good food that is on the husky side, but can be prepared (or warmed up) in a jiffy. Something warming and satisfying.

Baked beans make one of the very best cold weather dishes for hungry youngsters and oldsters. Sure to score and also easy to prepare quickly are those American favorites, ham and eggs or scrambled eggs and link sausages accompanied by giddle cakes or waffles.

Pass a hot appetizer as soon as the guests arrive. Let it be hot tomato or cranberry juice, steaming broth or spiced cider.

BOSTON BAKED BEANS can be baked the day of the game and then left in the oven to be reheated when the hungry crew arrives. To serve 8 or 9 wash 4 cups dry navy beans and soak for 3 hours in boiling water to cover. Preserve the minerals and vitamins by cooking the beans in the water in which they were soaked, adding extra water if needed to cover well. Bring to boil, skim and cook slowly for about fifty minutes, or until beans are tender. Drain beans (reserving cooking water) and turn into bean pot or large casserole. Scrape rind of half pound salt pork until white; score top by cutting down about one inch, and bury in beans with rind exposed. Mix together one cup pure New Orleans molasses, a teaspoon dry mustard, one tablespoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon pepper and three cups water, reserved from cooking beans. Pour this mixture over beans, cover and bake in slow oven (320) three and a half hours, uncovering casserole during last hour of baking. If necessary, add more water during baking.

Baked or steamed brown bread, a tossed green salad, fresh fruit or baked apples may be served with baked beans for a thrifty, yet hearty meal. Chili sauce or catsup, mustard or dill pickles, all go well with beans.

VEGETABLE MEAT SOUP is an economical, savory main dish which is as "good as new" reheated. In fact, the flavors are often even better. Select a large soup bone with some meat attached. Place in kettle and cover by five inches with cold water. Slowly bring to the boiling point, add one and a half teaspoons salt, two-thirds cup diced celery, one crushed bay leaf and one-quarter teaspoon pepper. Cover tightly and cook slowly for two hours. Add two cups each diced carrots, cooked lima beans and half cup chopped onions. Cook slowly one hour. Remove the bone and when cool take off the meat and return it to the soup. A DELICIOUS FILLING FOR DIFFERENT TARTS

Almost everybody likes tarts, and a recipe for a new filling or one just a little different is usually a welcome addition to the collection. Here is one planned to please. Its yield is thirty-six tarts.

Ingredients: One and one-half cups flour, sifted; three-fourths teaspoon salt; one-half cup shortening; two of three tablespoons ice water; one-fourth cup softened butter.

Filling: Three-fourths cup ground ham; three-fourths cup ground chicken; one ground hard-boiled egg; one egg yolk; pepper; two tablespoons cream.

Directions: Sift flour and salt and cut in, shortening to consistency of sand; slowly add water to make a dough. Roll out and spread with half the butter; fold in corners, roll again, spread on the remaining butter and fold. Re-roll, fold and allow to chill.

For filling, combine all ingredients and mix thoroughly. Then spread it evenly on one-half the dough rolled out to quarter-inch thickness in baking sheet. Cover with remaining dough and cut into various tart shapes. Bake for twenty minutes at 450 degrees F.

Meat 'Substitutes' Since meat kidneys and hearts are high in food values and practically all edible they should be served frequently in meals. The kidneys can be broiled, baked or added to stews and escalloped mixtures. Heart is very good stuffed and baked, or boiled, sliced and browned in a small amount of fat. These are not expensive foods.

Save Vegetable Stocks Potato stock (water in which potatoes are cooked) becomes an economical, nutritious soup when well seasoned, and combined with diced cooked celery and onions and bouillon cubes. Take a cube for each two cups of stock. For extra nutrition serve in deep hot bowls and sprinkle with cheese.

For Good Gravies To make gravies good as can be, add a bit of chopped green pepper to beef or lamb gravy. Results will touch off new enthusiasm.

Waffle Hint

Thought for the day: Add last bit of cold, cooked meat to waffle batter to "up" its food value and flavor.

A Gay Garnish

Apple sauce in orange cups makes a gay, flavorful garnish for roast duck—wild or domestic. Save your orange cases after squeezing out morning orange juice. Scrape out pulp with a spoon and store cases for a day or so in refrigerator.

Frosting Hint

Add one-eighth teaspoon of baking powder to frosting to help keep it fluffy and prevent sugaring.

LaSalle Rout's Keyser 24-0 in Final Game

Palmer, Laffey Share Explorer Scoring Honors

Blue and Gold Captain Tallies after Helping To Block Kick

KEYSER, W. Va., Nov. 13.—The LaSalle High Explorers of Cumberland, Md., scored in three of the four periods here this afternoon to close their 1942 football season with a 24-0 victory over the hapless Keyser High Golden Tornado eleven.

With Jim Laffey, Captain Ron Palmer, Frances Passarelli and Joe Arnone all turning in great games, the Explorers had almost everything their own way in registering their third victory in seven starts this year.

Laffey and Palmer shared scoring honors with the former going across for the first two touchdowns and the LaSalle captain being credited with the other two six-pointers.

In the first quarter, the visitors took over on Keyser's forty-five and after going to the twenty-nine, Laffey ran the ball across. Palmer missed the first of four unsuccessful kicks for extra points.

Palmer Scores Twice
In the second quarter, a fifty-four yard drive was climaxed by Laffey's payoff smash from six yards out. After this touchdown, Coach Jack Plum sent in his second team which was in action until the half.

After being held scoreless in the third chapter, LaSalle came back with two more touchdowns in the last period. After Laffey passed forty yards, Passarelli, who was brought down by Keyser's twenty-five, the Explorers attempted one line play for no gain before Laffey tossed to Palmer in the end zone. The LaSalle captain was used in three positions in today's scrap, starting at left tackle, then moving to end and finally winding up at fullback.

Palmer, with the help of Arnone, almost single-handedly tallied the final Explorer touchdown. Keyser, pushed back to its five yard stripe, tried to punt the ball out of danger but Palmer and Arnone came in fast, blocked the kick and before the ball had stopped its gyrations, Palmer picked it up and ran it across for a six-pointer. The second team finished the tussle.

Keyser Player Banished
The Explorers, playing without halfback George Geatz and Guard Herb Wartzack, rang the bell for a total of 296 yards with seventy-five yards coming on two of seven passes. LaSalle had one pass intercepted.

Keyser, which made seven first downs to the winners' thirteen, picked up a total of 156 yards with sixty yards coming on five of ten passes. The Tornado also had one heave intercepted.

Dick Davy, Keyser halfback, was banished in the last quarter for unnecessary roughness but before being ejected turned in a great game. Lionel Martin, left guard, did outstanding work on the line.

The Golden Tornado has been blanked in losing six straight games this season and will complete what has proven to be a disastrous campaign next Friday by tangling with Ridgeley on the local gridiron. The lineup:

first downs to the Romney team's five. Due to a heavy wind, there was a minimum of passing with Ridgeley attempting the only aerial, which fell incomplete.

'Bama Threatens Ga. Tech's Streak

Somebody Stands To Lose Bowl Bid in Grid Clash Today

By ROMNEY WHEELER

ATLANTA, Nov. 13 (AP)—There'll be no bowl bid in the balance when unbeaten, untied Georgia Tech colleges tomorrow with once-beaten Alabama—but it will be a battle to see who stays home next New Year's day.

Tech's razzle-dazzle Engineers, winners in seven straight games, rank second only to Georgia as a national gridiron power. Alabama, stopped only by Georgia, is fifth. A victory for Tech would open the way for a possible battle for the mythical national championship when Tech and Georgia meet at Athens, Ga., two weeks hence.

Both Tech and Georgia appear strong enough to weather next week's games—Tech vs. Florida and Georgia vs. Auburn—if Tech gets by 'Bama. But there's the rub! Alabama, a pool of Southern sports editors installed Tech as a 2-to-1 favorite over the Crimson Tide, sideliners agree that the big red team has overwhelming power in the line—a line that may stop Tech as it stopped Georgia a fortnight ago, until Frankie Sinkwich burned the barn with a last-quarter passing attack for a 21-10 decision.

Alabama adherents believe the Crimson Tide still has a chance for a bowl invitation—if it can stop Georgia Tech tomorrow and follow that with victories over Vanderbilt and the Georgia Naval Pre-Flight school.

The game is expected to draw a sell-out crowd of 33,000.

North End Outfit Tops AHS Jayvees

Terrors Score on Pass Interception for 7 to 0 Victory

The North End Terrors scored a 7-0 victory over the Allegheny High Jayvees on the Campobello field yesterday afternoon with the only touchdown of the game coming in the third period when Lou Baker intercepted one of Glen Stewart's passes and ran twenty-five yards to score. Zaph plunged the extra point.

The Terrors had another scoring opportunity in the same period when an end run carried the ball to the Allegheny five. However, the Jayvees held for downs.

The losers were inside the North End twenty only once and lost the ball on that occasion when four plays failed to gain the necessary yardage for a first down. The lineups:

Beau Jack Wins Over Allie Stolz

Gashed Eye Stops Lightweight Contender after Seven Rounds

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (AP)—Scoring one of the outstanding fast upsets of the year, Beau Jack, a swarming, charging little negro, stopped the No. 1 lightweight contender, Allie Stolz, tonight with a badly gashed left eye after seven rounds of brawling in Madison Square Garden. Stolz weighed 137½; Jack, 132½.

A sharp overhand right opened the cut in the fourth round, and Jack—whose real name is Sidney Walker—reopened it and lengthened it in each round until the end of the seventh, and it was apparent that Stolz was having difficulty seeing through the eye.

So Referee Frank Fullam summoned Dr. William Walker, State Athletic commission physician, into Stolz's corner and after an examination Dr. Walker would not permit the curly-haired Newark stylist to continue.

For the seven completed rounds, the Associated Press score card gave Jack, who hails from Augusta, Ga., by way of Springfield, Mass., three rounds; Stolz, three and called one even.

"The Authority on Authorities."

DON'T RAISE A MINOR
THAT WOULD BE insane advice if you followed it all the time. It is the soundest possible counsel if you add the words "except when you are unable to bid another suit, or No Trump, or when you have a part score." Even bidding the other minor is better bridge than raising your partner's minor, as it shows him a second suit stopped and may prove the key to a perfectly safe No Trump game, requiring only nine tricks instead of eleven.

♠ K Q 9 6	♥ A J 10 3
♦ K 8 6	♣ K 3
♠ K 9 6 3 2	♥ A 8 7 3
♦ A J 10 3	♣ A J 7
♠ 8 7 4	♥ A J 10
♦ 9 5 2	♣ 10 8 5 4

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1. Pass	Pass	Pass	1♠
2. Pass	2♠	Pass	2NT
3. Pass	3♠	Pass	4♦
4. Pass	Pass	Pass	1♠
5. Pass	1♥	1NT	3NT

West felt a little ticklish about leaving in that 3-No Trumps at the second table, but decided to do it, since his takeout of 1-No Trump to 2-Diamonds had rather warmed East that his heart bid was not so hot, and was justified mainly by the fact that he had a diamond fit.

The diamond declarer at Table 1 exactly made his contract, losing one trick in spades and two in hearts, but it of course gave him no game, whereas the 3-No Trumps declarer took one less trick, but scored a game.

Against the No-Trumper South led the club 4, the Q, K and A scoring. With no immediate entry to dummy, East had to try to drop the diamond K with the A, which worked, giving him then plenty of entries to dummy to try finesses in other suits. After using the diamond Q for that purpose, he led the spade 2 to the Q and A, returned to dummy with the diamond J and offered the spade 5. North soundly ducked and the J won. Now the club J, diamond 10 and diamond 6 brought the total to nine tricks. The last four were lost, but East didn't care much because he had his game.

Your Week-End Lesson
Why is it that a 9-spot is the only card in the deck which is never from a suit of four cards or more, when it is led in an unbid suit against a No Trump contract by a player who strictly observes the conventional meaning of leads?

EVERYONE KNOWS that house-to-house canvassing is a nasty job full of refusals and discouragements, yet Times-News papers make a welcomed canvass of nearly every house in this section every day. Let Times-News want ads canvass for you.

THE ASTONISHING SUCCESS of the want ads in all the services that they perform is due to the uncertainty of world events that prompts the reader to cover his newspaper every day, and to the certainty of results from advertising because of this uncertainty.

Tire Inspectors Attend School Of Instruction

Forms To Be Used In Checking Tires Are Explained by Thompson

A school of instruction for tire inspectors for the new mileage rationing program which begins soon was held yesterday afternoon in city hall auditorium under the direction of Daniel F. McMullen, chairman of War Price and Rationing Board No. 1-1, and Miles G. Thompson, board office manager.

Sixty-eight men attended the school. Twenty of them were inspectors under the old program while forty-eight have applied for positions as inspectors under the new system. McMullen addressed the men at the opening of the school and outlined their duties under the program and necessity of exact adherence to regulations set down by the government as to their work.

Thompson exhibited forms which are to be used in checking tires of all vehicles and explained the procedure which is to be followed in having them filled out. Tire inspectors will distribute some of the forms while plant committeemen at local industrial firms will distribute the bulk of the new forms.

Persons attending the school were told that the new program of periodic inspection of tires is being carried out by the OPA on the recommendation of the Baruch committee which investigated the rubber situation recently. This committee recognized the acute need for conserving all tires now on passenger cars and trucks.

The tires on civilian cars are wearing down at a rate eight times greater than they are being replaced. If this situation continues, by far the larger number of cars will be off the road next year, and in 1944 there will be an all but complete collapse of civilian transportation, the Baruch committee noted.

Between December 1 and January 31, the tires on all passenger cars must be inspected by an authorized OPA inspector. Periodic inspection will be held every four months after February for cars holding basic "A" and "D" mileage books. Holders of "B" or "C" books are required to have tires inspected every two months.

Forum Committee Believes Season Will Pay Its Way

Only Hundred More Season Tickets Needed To Assure Success

After reports of ticket sales were tabulated following the opening of the Community Forum here, Monday, members of the forum committee indicated that the season will be reasonably successful financially.

With the junior association of commerce membership depleted nearly sixty per cent, due to members entering military service, the sponsoring organization has been handicapped for ticket sellers and feared there might be a serious financial loss.

A survey of the situation shows, however, that over 400 season tickets are needed to assure a successful season financially. When all reports are in, the committee believes this figure may be reached.

The forum is a non-profit venture and all funds realized from the sale of tickets are used to pay speakers, pay for the cost of renting the auditorium and printing.

In addition to the season admissions, about 100 persons paid single admission prices to hear Col. Carlos P. Romulo, aide to General Douglas MacArthur.

The next forum speaker will be Pierre van Paassan, noted foreign correspondent, lecturer and author. He will speak here December 7.

The Rev. Francis X. Talbot, S. J., editor-in-chief of "America," will lecture January 11, and Rex Stout, book commentator and novelist, is booked as the final attraction on February 15. All lectures are on Monday night.

School Buses Must Have War Necessity Permits Not Later Than Dec. 1

The date for filing certificates of war necessity for school buses has been advanced from November 15, until December 1, according to Arthur G. Ramey, personnel supervisor for the Allegheny County Board of Education.

All school buses will be required to have such a certificate after that date.

Social Security To Be Discussed

Radio Program Sunday Is Sponsored by "Town Meeting of the Air"

Administrative heads of the local offices which handle the various activities of the Social Security act will discuss phases of the act and its operation Sunday at 5 p. m. over radio station WTBO on the regular Club of Human Relations "Town Meeting of the Air."

Miss Irene Olson, executive secretary of the Allegheny County Welfare Board, will give a detailed account of that organization's function in carrying out the Federal Social Security act program for old age assistance, aid to dependent children and public assistance to the needy blind.

A description of the functions and workings of the Federal Old Age and Survivors program under Social Security and the requirements needed will be given by Henry M. Millhouse, manager of the local Social Security Board field office.

Dan R. Staley, manager of the local United States Employment Service office, will discuss the present employment and unemployment problems which are handled by staff members of his office.

C. Athey Murray will be in charge of the program and will be the moderator.

This will be the first program of the Club of Human Relations since last year. Robert Kaplan, club president, said last night that a schedule of broadcasts on timely subjects, both social and economic, will be given in coming weeks.

Bomb Observation School To Be Held In Cumberland

Army Specialist Will Conduct Classes Here Monday and Tuesday

An army specialist, Lieut. Col. M. H. Resin Coff, from the Aberdeen Proving Ground will be in Cumberland next Monday and Tuesday to conduct a bombing reconnaissance school in the city hall auditorium, according to Maj. Sam Murray, Third Corps Area Service Command, who is here conferring with state and city police and civilian defense officials.

It is hoped to have at least 300 volunteers attend the two-day school. Maj. Murray said men most eligible for the school are all city policemen, state police, county authorities, utility workmen, railroad key men, and workmen of industrial plants.

Maj. Murray was emphatic in saying that published reports that the purpose of instructing the civilian population in identifying and locating bombs and rendering them harmless were untrue. "It is the work only of the Bomb Disposal Company of the Aberdeen Proving Ground to render harmless any bombs that are found," he declared.

Civilians are to be trained in the work of identifying and locating delayed action type bombs. Maj. Murray said at least ten per cent of all Nazi bombs dropped on England and other countries are of the delayed action type. They explode after impact in periods of one minute to as much as three days later.

Sgt. Harold Carl, liaison officer between civilian defense and police authorities, said last night that in future blackouts here several problems in bomb identification and location will be tried out. Commissioned Police James Orr is assisting in plans for the two-day school.

Use of Proper Taproom "English" Is Explained by Local Attorney of OPA

Big Difference between 'Poured' and 'Prepared' Drink, Mullaney Says

Loose talk costs lives, according to wartime posters and loose talk also will cost you money at bars if you do not use the proper taproom "English."

That's the opinion expressed by Matthew J. Mullaney, attorney to the local field office of the OPA.

And here's how it's going to cost you more mazzuma.

Suppose you go to your bartender and say "Gimme a Scotch and soda." That is loose talk.

You should say "Gimme a 'poured' Scotch and soda. Or you could say "Gimme a shot of scotch and dash of soda. I'll mix it myself." That is not loose talk, in the opinion of Mullaney.

Because if the bartender doesn't mix the scotch and soda in front of you, that is not a 'poured' scotch and soda. That is a 'prepared' scotch and soda.

And on a 'prepared' scotch and soda there is no ceiling price, and the bartender could legally charge you almost anything he chooses. But on a 'poured' scotch and soda (or any other straight drink where the liquor is served in one glass and the 'chaser' in another) the bartender can charge you no more than he did last March.

Girl Evangelist Is Also Interested In Newspaper Work and Aviation

Betty Weakland Says War Is Due to Greed and Desire for Power

Terms War Marriages Following Weekend Acquaintances as Tragic

The "girl evangelist," Miss Betty Weakland, is no longer a girl, strictly speaking, Miss Weakland who, according to her press notices, "spurred love for religion," is a very attractive young lady.

And although Miss Weakland has gained the reputation of being America's foremost girl preacher, she has other interests besides those pertaining to the church.

Perhaps ranking highest among her outside interests at the present time is a monthly newspaper, "Home Cooking," published in her home town of Jamestown, N. Y., for residents of her community serving in the armed forces.

Editor of Monthly Paper

Miss Weakland serves as editor of the servicemen's monthly, keeping them in touch with events on the home front as a part of her contribution to the war effort.

Through her work on this chronicle, Miss Weakland likewise is in close touch with wives, mothers, sisters and sweethearts of men in the service and she insists that war work and other projects are not enough to "keep them steady."

On the other hand, she explains to the persons who "have something real to cling to can meet the situation with confidence. The Lord Jesus," she explains, "is the one who can help them since His work is in an outlet with which to the ends together."

Asked her opinion of war marriages, Miss Weakland promptly replied that she believes those that are the result of a weekend acquaintance are "just too tragic," but, she adds, "I see nothing wrong" (Continued on Page 9, Col. 3)

FURTHER CURTAILMENT OF RETAIL DELIVERIES IS BEING CONSIDERED

A proposed order limiting retail deliveries to three weekly is being considered by the Office of Defense Transportation, Harold W. Smith, executive secretary of the chamber of commerce, said yesterday.

Retail deliveries already have been curtailed considerably because of the war and Smith pointed out that the American Retail Federation states that no definite date for the proposed new order has been set although it may become effective before Christmas.

The proposed order limits deliveries to three weekly and in order to be delivered a package must meet one of three specifications. Weight must be more than five pounds, length and girth must be sixty inches or over, or the value must be $2 or more.

Retail delivery of all beverages with the exception of milk and cream, and of cigars, cigarettes, smoking tobacco, confections and ice cream is prohibited under the new order.

Office of the Clerk Of Court Has A Quiet Day

There was little activity in the clerk's office at the court house yesterday, with only a few new documents recorded. Court house attaches believe the weather and the war are perhaps equally responsible, and also mention the fact that hunting season is well on its way with the rush for hunting licenses over.

No deeds were filed for record yesterday, there was not a single divorce action entered, no new civil suits were docketed and no change was noted in the criminal record.

Two mortgages, two chattel mortgages, and one conditional sales contract, and one bill of sale were filed. And that just about constituted the day's activity, clerks stated.

Potomac Edison Is Winner of Fleet Safety Contest

Company Awarded Plaque for Fine Record Made by Its Truck Drivers

The Potomac Edison Company has been declared the winner of the National Fleet Safety Contest which is sponsored by the National Safety Council. The company has been awarded a plaque for its record of only three chargeable accidents in 1,299,000 miles of truck driving.

Officials of the Cumberland district of the company said about fifteen trucks are operated here.

The award was made by the National Safety Council at the National Safety Congress, which met in Chicago recently.

At the same meeting, Potomac Edison received a second notable award. It was announced that in addition to winning its first place in the Fleet Safety Contest, it had also won third place in competition with all types of companies in the passenger Car Safety Contest. Finishing behind the Toledo (Ohio) Edison Company and the Atlantic Refining Company, Potomac Edison was given a certificate for earning the third place victory.

The winning of the Fleet Safety Contest in a time when conservation of manpower and vital materials contributes to winning the war brought from R. Paul Smith, of Hagerstown, president of the company, a statement praising the drivers of the fleet of company vehicles. He said:

"It would be natural to think that some special safety campaign must have been worked up among the drivers of the truck fleet in order to carry this near-perfect record over the twelve-month contest period. As a matter of fact, no extra activity beyond our regular requirements of safe driving was necessary to achieve this honor."

In the National Safety Council's fleet safety contest, which ended June 30, 1942, The Potomac Edison Company competed against forty-two utilities companies in the United States and was the winner over The Toledo (Ohio) Edison Company and Idaho Power Company, which were second and third respectively.

Since 1938, Potomac Edison has each year been moving nearer to first place in the contest just won. In that year it was thirty-fourth; in 1939 — twelfth; in 1940 — eleventh; in 1941 — sixth.

Smith Predicts Christmas Business Here Will Be Ahead of Last Year

Three Banks Will Pay Out $249,400 in Christmas Savings Funds

Christmas business in Cumberland will be ten to fifteen per cent ahead of last year despite a decrease in savings through Christmas clubs, Harold W. Smith, executive secretary of the chamber of commerce, predicted yesterday.

A total of $249,400 will be paid out in Christmas savings by three banks operating savings clubs as compared to $258,000 a year ago, a check revealed, but Smith said he believes a good size "stock pile" of money is available for Christmas shopping.

Although the total savings is less than last year, the Commercial Savings Bank had a record high for dollars saved in Christmas clubs, $135,700, an increase of $4,700 over a year ago.

Bank officials attributed the decline in the total for the three banks to the great purchase of war savings bonds, explaining that Allegheny county has equalled its quota in every month but one and for most of the months has been well ahead of the goal.

Payroll Will Be Higher

Smith said there that the Cumberland payroll for December will be an estimated half million dollars

County Voters Oppose Changes In Constitution

Seven Amendments on Ballot Defeated Here, Official Count Shows

The seven constitutional amendments which appeared on the ballot for the general election November 3, were all defeated in Allegheny county. Voting here, while in many instances inconsistent with the majority vote in other parts of the state where the amendments were favored, may have some bearing on the final adoption of some of the amendments.

There was more interest here in the juvenile court amendment than in any other. Least interest was shown in the amendment providing for the residential qualifications and method of selection of associate judges in the Third judicial circuit.

The amendment which came nearest to passing in this county was the juvenile court amendment.

The vote follows:

1. Amendment to increase salaries of the state legislature: For—1,915. Against—2,774.

II. Amendment relating to gifts, devices and other transfer to or for certain preachers and religious sects, orders or denominations: For—1,556. Against—3,138.

III. Amendment providing for the taking of property by the state roads commission under certain conditions: For—1,627. Against—3,138.

IV. Amendment providing for the residential qualifications and method of selecting associate judges in the Third judicial circuit: For—1,375. Against—3,709.

V. Amendment relating to the salary of clerks of court and registers of wills: For—1,825. Against—2,963.

VI. Amendment providing for the establishment of juvenile courts: For—2,318. Against—2,893.

VII. Amendment relating to the advertisement and publication of amendments to the constitution: For—1,534. Against—2,712.

Serious Shortage Of Milk Exists In This County

State OPA Director Receives Recommendations from Dairymen

BALTIMORE, Nov. 13. (P)—State OUA Administrator Leo H. McCormick said today OPA representatives had been sent to New York and Washington to discuss a serious milk problem in Maryland which McCormick said was presented to him by milk producers and dairymen.

McCormick said dairymen from Baltimore, Salisbury, Eastern, Elkton, Cumberland, Oakland, Hagerstown, Frederick, Hyattsville and Annapolis attended a meeting called by the OPO because of "existing shortages of milk in some parts of the state and threatened shortages in other sections."

That the OPA ask an increase in the price ceiling of milk, the benefit to be passed down to the producer, thus stimulating production;

That butter fat or raw milk be rationed to the consumer, and the establishment of a zoning regulation which would prevent "inter-state market raiding and require some special arrangement in case a buyer had to leave his own area to get an adequate supply.

The milk shortage, McCormick said, had produced indirectly an "alarming" transportation problem. "Purchasers from other areas have been coming into Maryland for milk to supply their customers," he said, "while the dairymen of Maryland have been forced to go elsewhere to buy a sufficient supply to take care of their own customers."

"This has resulted in a series of cross-hauling operations which are flagrantly wasteful of both gasoline and rubber."

The dairymen told the OPA executive that the increased cost of food, loss of farm workers to defense industries, attractive prices for beef with resultant sale in the beef market rather than keeping cattle in dairy herds and the influx of defense workers had caused the shortage.

McCormick said the problem was one which should be solved on a regional or national basis. "That is why we sent our men to New York and Washington," he said, "so they can take steps in the proper way to relieve this situation."
